Attackers Lost Half Of Soldiers

Churchill Reports How Costly Dieppe Raid Was and Mentions Defenses

Extension Given

Life of Commons Is Extended Full Year by Government

London, Sept. 30 (AP)—The Allied invasion test at Dieppe met tank barriers of unforseen strength and the attackers' losses were "very nearly half the total" of the troops involved, Prime Minister Churchill said in the House of Commons today.

As at the first meeting of the reconvened House yesterday, when the Prime Minister emphasized the undesirability of speculation on the time and place of a second front, his reports were in answer to a battery of questioners.

He is expected shortly, however, to make a more thorough report on the war situation.

For the third time since the war began, the House received a government bill for a one-year extension of its own life. Thus the government rejected repeated demands from critics of the present Commons for a general election.

Most of the members were elected in 1935 for the normal term of five years but have sat on under a political truce aimed at keeping the parties' numerical representation fixed for the duration.

Captain Randolph Churchill, the Prime Minister's son, who said he had been elected to Parliament without opposition "through no fault of my own," declared that an election at the present time would be a farce because many of the best potential voters were away from home—serving in the armed forces.

After the war, he said, "our ladies of politics" should make way for young minds.

Prime Minister Churchill said that British tanks were held up by the "altogether unexpected strength" of defense blocks placed at the ends of Dieppe's streets by the Germans.

It had not been anticipated, he added, that the barriers could not be destroyed by British guns.

Making a statement in response to questions, The Prime Minister said the military force commander at Dieppe had described the support given by the R. A. F. for the operations there as "faultless."

The R. A. F. fought the greatest air battle of all time over the coastal town, destroying nearly 100 German planes for certain and possibly bringing down many more, Churchill said.

James Henderson Stewart asked the Prime Minister to reconcile his announcement of September 8 that most of the Dieppe force returned and the official Canadian statement that of 5,000 Canadians participating there were 3,350 casualties, including 2,717 killed or missing.

"In my statement of September 8," Prime Minister Churchill answered, "I was referring to the assaulting forces as a whole, the greater part of whom were, in fact, brought back by the Royal Navy.

"There is no inconsistency in this with the statement of the Canadian minister of national defense who was referring only to casualties among Canadian troops who took part."

He declined to give the Germans the benefit of percise figures but said that the losses "were very heavy and went up to nearly half of the total."

(In his earlier reference to "the assaulting forces as a whole," Churchill presumably included naval forces as well as all land forces besides the Canadians in the storming of the Dieppe beach.)

Noting that the tanks which attacked at Dieppe were "Churchills," a British type named for him, the Prime Minister declared in response to Laborite Emanuel Shinwell that they showed no lack of "distinction" but were being tested constantly for improvements.

The Churchill, heaviest and newest tank which the British have announced having in operation, mounts a six-pounder gun.

Churchill told the House that the government of Northern Ireland was satisfied that the situation created by Irish Republican army outbreaks was "well in hand."

Some of the disturbance has taken the form of I.R.A. protests against the presence of United States troops in Northern Ireland.

The Prime Minister rejected the suggestion of Sir Ronald Ross that he establish an "effective boundary under military control between Ulster and Eire" in view of what Ross called armed raids from neutral territory and "the ease with which enemy agents could at present get information as to British and United States forces in Northern Ireland."

Effective measures already have been taken, Churchill declared.

Cardinals' Fans Swarm Into Park For Series Opener

Opening Game Is Meeting of Veterans Versus Novices as Far as Classic Goes

Sportsman's Park, St. Louis, Sept. 30 (AP) — Red-hot Cardinal fans, many of whom waited in line all night, swarmed into the park and quickly filled every available unreserved seat several hours before the Yankees and the Cards were scheduled to clash in the opening World Series game at 1:30 p. m. (C. W. T.) today.

Several thousand paid their money for standing room in the lower section of the grandstand, but still many were left to mill around on the narrow streets outside the field. St. Louis finally had put on its World Series clothes and there was excitement in the air.

Unless the rival managers changed their plans just before game time, Mort Cooper, 27-year-old Cardinal ace, was due to face Red Ruffing, 37-year-old Yankee World Series "specialist," in a duel of right-handers.

Ruffing in his long years with the Yankees has won six World Series games while losing only one, but Cooper, like all the other Cardinal players, was appearing in his first classic.

Two hours before noon a band seated itself behind home plate and began whipping up a series of popular tunes to keep the early comers entertained. Neither the Yanks nor the Cards had yet shown up at the park.

The sportsman's park infield, practically barren of grass, had been combed and curried until it glistened, and workmen were busy tacking bunting on the temporary boxes that extended out both foul lines.

Crowd Is About 35,000

A crowd of just under 35,000, the utmost capacity of the park, was expected. Every reserved chair was sold more than a week ago and speculators were getting handsome premiums for the seats that had come into their possession—up to $50 for choice locations.

The Cards received a standing ovation when they began strolling out from their dugout at 11 a. m., led by Coach Buzzy Wares. The batting cage was wheeled in behind the plate and the Red Birds immediately began their batting drill.

With Coacker Triplett, reserve outfielder, serving them up, the Cards thumped drive after drive out to the fences. They had held batting practice each of the last two days and obviously had their eyes on the ball. Harry Walker, the Card's young reserve gardener, was first to pop a ball into the bleachers in right, 310 yards from the plate.

For the first time in years, Al Schacht, baseball's favorite clown, was not on hand to entertain the customers with his zaney antics.

As usual, the photographic corps had a field day snapping the Cards, individually and collectively. In between poses, Manager Billy Southworth said he intended to stick by his regular line-up, the one that won 43 of its last 52 games.

Captain Terry Moore, showing no sign of the game leg that hampered him in the closing weeks of the season, slapped two drives in

State Comptroller Allows Hurley Fire District Bid

The office of the state comptroller has informed Roscoe V. Elsworth, attorney for the petitioners, that the action taken by the Hurley Town Board in granting a fire district within the bounds of Election District No. 2 has been approved.

Fire commissioners soon will be named by the town board to complete the organization and take steps to provide the district with fire protection, as set forth in state law.

Settlement Made In Marlborough's Fire Truck Action

Order by Supreme Court Allows for Compromise In Accident Case Dating From '39

Three actions arising from the collision between the Milton fire truck and a car of Samuel Abrams in June, 1939, when the fire truck, driven by Chief Frederick J. Thiell, went out of control have been settled. Two people riding on the truck were killed.

Justice Harry E. Schirick has signed an order approving a compromise settlement of the three actions and providing that recovery be made from the fire district through a levy against the fire district. The action, which was originally brought by the plaintiffs, Ira Abrams, an infant, and Samuel and Tillie Abrams against Milton Fire District and Frederick J. Thiell, is settled for $750 and the compromise settlement is to be paid by the fire district, Thiell having been relieved as a defendant and the action as against him dismissed.

The compromise settlement was reached at a special term of Supreme Court September 28, and an order of compromise has been filed in the county clerk's office. The infant is awarded $150 for injuries suffered, Tillie Abrams is awarded $500 and Samuel Abrams is awarded $100 for injuries and damage to his car. Chris J. Flanagan appeared for the plaintiffs. Rusk and Rusk for the Fire District.

On a Sunday afternoon the fire truck was taken to Marlborough by Chief Thiell for a run. There was no fire alarm sounded. With him were two members of the fire department, who were fatally injured when the truck left the roadway near the Hepworth roadside stand after striking the Abrams car and overturned in the ditch. It was contended that Thiell had no authority to take the truck out that day and he was indicted by the grand jury for criminal negligence in the operation of the vehicle and served time in jail on his plea of guilty to the charge.

John Bull Is New Person and as Fit As Trained Athlete

People Are Not Famished, but Are Lean and Look Forward to All-Out Allied Drive

(DeWitt Mackenzie, Wide World's noted war analyst, now is in London after a transatlantic flight and the following is his first article on observing wartime Britain. He will proceed to other war zones, when governments and news developments permit, and his reports may be read in The Freeman from day to day in his column.)

BY DE WITT MACKENZIE
(Wide World War Analyst)

London, Sept. 30—The most important thing your correspondent can report from his initial glance at this wartime Britain is that John Bull and his wife and youngsters—that is, the civilian rank and file—not only are amazingly fit but grimly anxious to get speedily ahead with the bloody work before them.

The spirit of offensive is everywhere.

This is the first chance I have had to size up Britain at close range since January, 1939. That was soon after little Czecho-Slovakia was sent to the sacrificial altar by the Munich appeasement pact and less than a year before the Hitlerian Frankenstein cut loose his monster on an unprepared world.

One had expected to find changes, of course, but here is a great metamorphosis of the man in the street.

Here is a new John Bull—and I know my Briton, having been with him in war and peace through long years in many parts of the globe.

Small things often signal big developments.

At the risk of being called fanciful, I'm going to confess to being mightily impressed during the short time I've been here by an odd circumstance: I haven't seen a single fat, or even plump person.

Now, that is a matter of importance when you figure out why it is so, for while Britons as a whole don't run to avoirdupois, there always have been plenty of stout persons about, and the traditional John Bull is ample of waist.

Not Gaunt From Hunger

I don't mean to picture a people gaunt from hunger. They're well enough fed, though on pretty tight rations. But we have here a whole population which by the exigencies of war has trained down to the fineness of athletes. His 46-inch trouser waistband folds loosely about J. Bull's new 40-inch girth.

Along with this there's another thing which gives pause for thought. I get the impression the people have reached the point where there might be a danger of overtraining. They have been so long set, tensely waiting for the word to go get Hitler, that they are beginning to suffer a bit

Hart Says U. S. Army Failed

Air Fighters Could Have Crippled Java Drive in First Day Over Luzon; Criticizes U. S. Navy

Philadelphia, Sept. 30 (AP)—Admiral Thomas C. Hart, former commander of Allied naval forces in the western Pacific, believes that Army air fighters failed in the first day of the battle over Luzon and thus missed a chance to cripple Japan's drive to Java.

Hart, in an article in the Oct. 3 issue of The Saturday Evening Post, released today, also asserted that "fighters based on Oahu aerodromes missed their big chance" during the Pearl Harbor attack.

The Navy "erred" at Pearl Harbor, he added, "in presenting so many targets in such small space, under the tense conditions prevailing in early December."

The former commander of the U. S. Asiatic fleet, now a member of the Navy's policy-making general board, made the statements in what the Post called "an appraisal of our mistakes and our virtues."

He said the Japanese had to conquer Luzon as the first step toward Java because it was the strongest island in the Philippines and "the Japs could not leave this power unimpaired on their flanks."

"This was the place and the time to have beaten our enemy in the air," he wrote. "On those fields were more than twice as many P-40's as the A. V. G. ever had, but again we failed to take much toll of the Japanese planes. That first day or so was our chance in the air, and we missed it. From there onward it was backward all the way, on the sea, on the land, under the sea and over both."

Discussing the Pearl Harbor attack, he said:

"X X X it is to be expected that the supposedly best defensive weapon, the fighter plane, will interfere with such an attack and at least punish it severely. The fighters which were based on Oahu's aerodromes missed their big chance x x x."

"No one should have given high valuation to such old and very slow capital ships" as were lost in the raid, he added, but "the losses in large planes x x x were very serious x x x.

"When it comes to assessing fault for Pearl Harbor, whose fault was it that fifth columnists were able to send out communications with such freedom?"

Hart also wrot that American submarines are inflicting heavy losses on the Japanese in the Pacific, both on merchant and fighting ships, and commented, "not so much can be said about x x x it."

Freeman Carriers Sell 360,000 U. S. War Saving Stamps

Mothers and Fathers Are Praised for Manner of Encouragement Given to Boys

The letter published below indicates the great appreciation of the War Savings staff of the Treasury Department for the work which has been done by the Newspaper Boys of America and the support that has been given by the mothers and fathers.

Freeman carrier boys have sold 360,000 war savings stamps.

Treasury Department
Washington
Defense Savings Staff

To the Fathers and Mothers of the Newspaper Boys of America:

The patriotic work of your boys is so outstanding that we want you fathers and mothers to know how greatly weappreciate what they are doing. We are sure that your encouragement and guidance is in large part responsible for their starting and sticking to this necessary war-time job of selling War Savings Stamps and Bonds.

We hear so often of mothers and fathers who have "pitched-in" to the vital battle of selling War Stamps and Bonds to help their newspaper boy sons. We know that many nights these boys have come home a little later because they have had to work a lot harder. We know it has been at great sacrifice to their usual time for play and recreation. We know that without the support you have given them, the job would have been virtually impossible.

That is why we wish to take this opportunity, on the eve of National Newspaper Boy Day, October 3, to send you a message of thanks and appreciation. That is why we wish to call your attention to the statement of our President when he extended his greetings to

Woman Is Suicide By Inhaling Gas

Fear Over Son in Australia Causes Action, Coroner McCardle Says

Mrs. Andrew Wilbur, said to be about 50 years of age, was found dead at 10:35 o'clock this morning in the gas-filled kitchen of her home at 16 Merritt avenue, by Officers Thomas McGrane and Kenneth Hyatt who had been sent to the house after the police department had received a telephone call for aid.

Coroner Frank J. McCardle of Rosendale, the fire department and the Central Hudson Gas and Electric Corp., were also notified by the police and responded, but the woman was found beyond aid.

Dr. Chester B. Van Gaasbeck, who examined her pronounced her dead.

The coroner in issuing a verdict of suicide said that Mrs. Wilbur's son had entered the U. S. Army several months ago, and was now

Old Scrap Is Valuable, Because So Little Is Lost During Reprocessing

By HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE
(Wide World Science Editor)

New York, Sept. 30 —That rusting piece of metal around your house is better than virgin iron of the steel mills for manufacturing armaments and virtually all other steel products.

The reason — less of the old metal is lost in processing and the time of manufacture is shortened. The scrap contains less carbon, manganese, phosophorus, sulfur and silicon which must be processed out in making steel.

Iron and all its alloys, once they are processed into steel, retain their qualities practically forever. Only rust and abrasion destroy them and whatever is left is always good.

That is why the great scrap drive is on. That is why your old shovel is better fighting material than the mills can make, without spending some extra time. Two weeks after you turn in the shovel, it can be four hand grenades.

Absolutely no piece of scrap is too small; none too large. So long as it is metal, it is useful. Possibly you never knew that your shiny new autos of past years were largely, and sometimes wholly, made of steel that had been in use previously and then broken up for scrap.

More than half of America's great steel production has come from scrap for many years. Our steel today is about half scrap. And it will have to continue so.

Scrap isn't merely a shortage. It is a new industrial problem. The only available mines are you and you and you, housewife, farmer and factory owner. For each of you possesses, or is served by nine tons of steel. That is the per capita amount in use in the United States.

It figures out that the Com-

Young Mother Says She Did Not Leave Child in Terminal

Mrs. Gootkin and Father Are Arraigned; Arrest Follows Visit to Girl in Hospital

New York, Sept. 30 (AP)—A young mother shouted in police lineup today denials that she had abandoned her six-year-old daughter who for nine days was called "Little Miss Mystery" because she could not speak to identify herself after being found in Grand Central Station.

The mother, Mrs. Ruth Miller Gootkin, 22, and her father, Charles R. Miller, 50, both of New Haven, were arrested last night after Mrs. Gootkin had visited little Gertrude Louise in Bellevue Hospital where the child was taken after being found bewildered in the station.

Mrs. Gootkin and Miller were arraigned in felony court later on charges of acting in concert to abandon the child. Magistrate Edward C. Maguire fixed Friday for further hearing and set bail of $750 for Miller. Mrs. Gootkin was paroled in the custody of her attorney, James D. C. Murray.

Bernard J. Fagan, an officer of the Society of Prevention of Cruelty to Children, who signed the complaints against the girl's mother and grandfather, told the court that Miller, in denying intention to abandon Gertrude Louise, said he left the child at the station, walked around for a while "and then my mind went smack."

Mrs. Gootkin, answered police questions calmly this morning until acting Captain John G. Stein declared "you left here there and deserted her."

"No! No! No! I didn't!" the mother shouted. "I left the child with my father. He was going to take her to an institution for her health."

Hospital attendants said that when the child was brought there she was unable to speak and responded with fear to all gestures of kindliness.

The law stepped in after the girl was identified by foster parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Harbold, of New Cumberland, Pa., who said they had kept her for three years until the mother took her three weeks ago.

Detective Harold Hill said Mrs. Gootkin and her father brought the little girl here September 19, to find a home or hospital for her.

Dr. John Frosch, Belluve senior psychiatrist, said Mrs. Gootkin had told him the girl's father had died in an automobile accident two months before six-year-old Gertrude Louise was born. Dr. Frosch added that the mother,

Fuehrer Says Russian City Is Sure to Fall; 10,000 Nazi Wounded Hear Talk

Defies British

Hitler Says Complete Defenses Baffle 'Second Front'

By ROGER D. GREENE
(Associated Press War Editor)

Adolf Hitler told a Nazi party rally in Berlin today that Stalingrad was bound to fall and in an apparently less confident mood than usual declared that "we believe we shall continue to defeat our enemies until final victory is our."

Just a year ago, the Fuehrer boasted that "the enemy already is broken and will never rise again."

Ten thousand wounded Germans listened as Hitler addressed a galaxy of Nazi party chiefs and war leaders in the Berlin sportspalast.

Hitler defied the British to invade Europe, no matter where, asserting that "they can deem themselves lucky if they stay for nine hours on the continent, as at Dieppe, for we have made thorough preparations to welcome them.

"We are determined,' he went on, "to hold this year what we have and to attack where we believe it to be necessary."

Soviet headquarters reported today that the Red armies, surging down upon the German left flank, had defeated two Nazi divisions along the flaming 40-mile corridor between the Don and Volga rivers, while inside Stalingrad, the crisis remained acute.

New Sector Taken

A bulletin from German field headquarters said a new section of northern Stalingrad had been taken by storm.

Despite staggering losses, the Germans continued to throw great masses of troops into the 37-day-old assault, and the army newspaper Red Star declared gravely:

"Conditions in the city remain serious. The Germans have big losses, but the attacks do not lessen and violence grows."

Nevertheless, the Russians still displayed no sign of collapse after withstanding more than five weeks of violent assault. And as September ended, confidence rose in both Soviet and British quarters in London that the Red armies had blighted Hitler's two most cherished aims of 1942:

A new onsalught against Moscow.

Conquest of Russia's rich Tiflis-Baku oil region.

Soviet War News, published by the Russian embassy in London, declared that after 'having lost several dozen picked divisions, squandered several thousand tanks and planes and strewn every captured mile with their own dead, the Germans have failed to achieve victory."

Soviet gunners were reported to have slaughtered more than 1,500 Germans yesterday as the invaders launched repeated, futile attacks to widen a wedge in Stalingrad's northwest section.

"The enemy suffered particularly heavy losses in trying to capture one height," the Russian command said. "In this battle, the enemy lost over 700 men."

Red Star said the Germans, fearing sudden night attacks, were sending rockets flaring through the skies and floating down by parachutes to light the battle scene.

Dry grass blazed across the steppes northwest of the city, shrouding the countryside with a pall of yellow, acrid smoke.

While acknowledging the gravity of the situation within Stalingrad, Red Star declared that Russian troops had repulsed Nazi shock forces which knifed into a factory district on the northwest outskirts Monday.

Only the sparsest details were forthcoming on street fighting inside the Volga metropolis, with Red Army headquarters announcing merely that "our troops fought fierce engagements against enemy tanks and motorized infantry . . . a guard mortar unit commanded by Nikitin wiped out 800 Hitlerites."

Nor did the Soviet command divulge more than the bare announcement that two German divisions had been routed by relief attacks on the north flank, where Marshal Semeon Timoshenko has been hacking at the Nazi "barrier" guarding the main German siege armies.

Dispatches to the Soviet newspaper Comsomol Pravda declared that "the initiative remains in our hands" on the northwest steppes, although the Germans were reported massing tremendous forces to replace defeated divisions.

On the central (Moscow) front,

Thiell, is settled for $750 and the compromise settlement is to be paid by the fire district, Thiell having been relieved as a defendant and the action as against him dismissed.

The compromise settlement was reached at a special term of Supreme Court September 28, and an order of compromise has been filed in the county clerk's office. The infant is awarded $150 for injuries suffered. Tillie Abrams is awarded $500 and Samuel Abrams is awarded $100 for injuries and damage to his car. Chris J. Flanagan appeared for the plaintiffs. Rusk and Rusk for the Fire District.

On a Sunday afternoon the fire truck was taken to Marlborough by Chief Thiell for a run. There was no fire alarm sounded. With him were two members of the fire department, who were fatally injured when the truck left the roadway near the Hepworth roadside stand after striking the Abrams car and overturned in the ditch. It was contended that Thiell had no authority to take the truck out that day and he was indicted by the grand jury for criminal negligence in the operation of the vehicle and served time in jail on his plea of guilty to the charge.

Hart Says U. S. Army Failed

Air Fighters Could Have Crippled Java Drive in First Day Over Luzon; Criticizes U. S. Navy

Philadelphia, Sept. 30 (AP)—Admiral Thomas C. Hart, former commander of Allied naval forces in the western Pacific, believes that Army air fighters failed in the first day of the battle over Luzon and thus missed a chance to cripple Japan's drive to Java.

Hart, in an article in the Oct. 3 issue of The Saturday Evening Post, released today, also asserted that "fighters based on Oahu aerodromes missed their big chance" during the Pearl Harbor attack.

The Navy "erred" at Pearl Harbor, he added, "in presenting so many targets in such small space, under the tense conditions prevailing in early December."

The former commander of the U. S. Asiatic fleet, now a member of the Navy's policy-making general board, made the statements in what the Post called "an appraisal of our mistakes and our virtues."

He said the Japanese had to conquer Luzon as the first step toward Java because it was the strongest island in the Philippines and "the Japs could not leave this power unimpaired on their flanks."

"This was the place and the time to have beaten our enemy in the air," he wrote. "On those fields were more than twice as many P-40's as the A. V. G. ever had, but again we failed to take much toll of the Japanese planes. That first day or so was our chance in the air, and we missed it. From there onward it was backward all the way, on the sea, on the land, under the sea and over both."

Discussing the Pearl Harbor attack, he said:

"X X X it is to be expected that the supposedly best defensive weapon, the fighter plane, will interfere with such an attack and at least punish it severely. The fighters which were based on Oahu's aerodromes missed their big chance x x x."

"No one should have given high valuation to such old and very slow capital ships" as were lost in the raid, he added, but "the losses in large planes x x x were very serious x x x.

"When it comes to assessing fault for Pearl Harbor, whose fault was it that fifth columnists were able to send out communications with such freedom?"

Hart also wrot that American submarines are inflicting heavy losses on the Japanese in the Pacific, both on merchant and fighting ships, and commented, "not so much can be said about x x x it."

John Bull Is New Person and as Fit As Trained Athlete

People Are Not Famished, but Are Lean and Look Forward to All-Out Allied Drive

(DeWitt Mackenzie, Wide World's noted war analyst, now is in London after a transatlantic flight and the following is his first article on observing wartime Britain. He will proceed to other war zones, when governments and news developments permit, and his reports may be read in The Freeman from day to day in his column.)

BY DE WITT MACKENZIE
(Wide World War Analyst)

London, Sept. 30—The most important thing your correspondent can report from his initial glance at this wartime Britain is that John Bull and his wife and youngsters—that is, the civilian rank and file—not only are amazingly fit but grimly anxious to get speedily ahead with the bloody work before them.

The spirit of offensive is everywhere.

This is the first chance I have had to size up Britain at close range since January, 1939. That was soon after little Czecho-Slovakia was sent to the sacrificial altar by the Munich appeasement pact and less than a year before the Hitlerian Frankenstein cut loose his monster on an unprepared world.

One had expected to find changes, of course, but here is a great metamorphosis of the man in the street.

Here is a new John Bull—and I know my Briton, having been with him in war and peace through long years in many parts of the globe.

Small things often signal big developments.

At the risk of being called fanciful, I'm going to confess to being mightily impressed during the short time I've been here by an odd circumstance: I haven't seen a single fat, or even plump person.

Now, that is a matter of importance when you figure out why it is so, for while Britons as a whole don't run to avoirdupois, there always have been plenty of stout persons about, and the traditional John Bull is ample of waist.

Not Gaunt From Hunger

I don't mean to picture a people gaunt from hunger. They're well enough fed, though on pretty tight rations. But we have here a whole population which by the exigencies of war has trained down to the fineness of athletes. His 46-inch trouser waistband folds loosely about J. Bull's new 40-inch girth.

Along with this there's another thing which gives pause for thought. I get the impression the people have reached the point where there might be a danger of overtraining. They have been so long set, tensely waiting for the word to go get Hitler, that they are beginning to suffer a bit

Mothers and Fathers Are Praised for Manner of Encouragement Given to Boys

The letter published below indicates the great appreciation of the War Savings staff of the Treasury Department for the work which has been done by the Newspaper Boys of America and the support that has been given by the mothers and fathers.

Freeman carrier boys have sold 360,000 war savings stamps.

Treasury Department
Washington
Defense Savings Staff

To the Fathers and Mothers of the Newspaper Boys of America:

The patriotic work of your boys is so outstanding that we want you fathers and mothers to know how greatly we appreciate what they are doing. We are sure that your encouragement and guidance is in large part responsible for their starting and sticking to this necessary war-time job of selling War Savings Stamps and Bonds.

We hear so often of mothers and fathers who have "pitched-in" to the vital battle of selling War Stamps and Bonds to help their newspaper boy sons. We know that many nights these boys have come home a little later because they have had to work a lot harder. We know it has been at great sacrifice to their usual time for play and recreation. We know that without the support you have given them, the job would have been virtually impossible.

That is why we wish to take this opportunity, on the eve of National Newspaper Boy Day, October 3, to send you a message of thanks and appreciation. That is why we wish to call your attention to the statement of our President when he extended his greetings to

Fear Over Son in Australia Causes Action, Coroner McCardle Says

Mrs. Andrew Wilbur, said to be about 50 years of age, was found dead at 10:35 o'clock this morning in the gas-filled kitchen of her home at 16 Merritt avenue, by Officers Thomas McGrane and Kenneth Hyatt who had been sent to the house after the police department had received a telephone call for aid.

Coroner Frank J. McCardle of Rosendale, the fire department and the Central Hudson Gas and Electric Corp., were also notified by the police and responded, but the woman was found beyond aid.

Dr. Chester B. Van Gaasbeck, who examined her pronounced her dead.

The coroner in issuing a verdict of suicide said that Mrs. Wilbur's son had entered the U. S. Army several months ago, and was now

Old Scrap Is Valuable, Because So Little Is Lost During Reprocessing

By HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE
(Wide World Science Editor)

New York, Sept. 30 —That rusting piece of metal around your house is better than virgin iron of the steel mills for manufacturing armaments and virtually all other steel products.

The reason — less of the old metal is lost in processing and the time of manufacture is shortened. The scrap contains less carbon, manganese, phosphorus, sulfur and silicon which must be processed out in making steel.

Iron and all its alloys, once they are processed into steel, retain their qualities practically forever. Only rust and abrasion destroy them and whatever is left is always good.

That is why the great scrap drive is on. That is why your old shovel is better fighting material than the mills can make, without spending some extra time. Two weeks after you turn in the shovel, it can be four hand grenades.

Absolutely no piece of scrap is too small; none too large. So long as it is metal, it is useful. Possibly you never knew that your shiny new autos of past years were largely, and sometimes wholly, made of steel that had been in use previously and then broken up for scrap.

More than half of America's great steel production has come from scrap for many years. Our steel today is about half scrap. And it will have to continue so.

Scrap isn't merely a shortage. It is a new industrial problem. The only available mines are you and you and you, housewife, farmer and factory owner. For each of you possesses, or is served by nine tons of steel. That is the per capita amount in use in the United States.

It figures out that the Com-

Young Mother Says She Did Not Leave Child in Terminal

Mrs. Gootkin and Father Are Arraigned; Arrest Follows Visit to Girl in Hospital

New York, Sept. 30 (AP)—A young mother shouted in police lineup today denials that she had abandoned her six-year-old daughter who for nine days was called "Little Miss Mystery" because she could not speak to identify herself after being found in Grand Central Station.

The mother, Mrs. Ruth Miller Gootkin, 22, and her father, Charles R. Miller, 50, both of New Haven, were arrested last night after Mrs. Gootkin had visited little Gertrude Louise in Bellevue Hospital where the child was taken after being found bewildered in the station.

Mrs. Gootkin and Miller were arraigned in felony court later on charges of acting in concert to abandon the child. Magistrate Edward C. Maguire fixed Friday for further hearing and set bail of $750 for Miller. Mrs. Gootkin was paroled in the custody of her attorney, James D. C. Murray.

Bernard J. Fagan, an officer of the Society of Prevention of Cruelty to Children, who signed the complaints against the girl's mother and grandfather, told the court that Miller, in denying intention to abandon Gertrude Louise, said he left the child at the station, walked around for a while "and then my mind went smack."

Mrs. Gootkin, answered police questions calmly this morning until acting Captain John G. Stein declared "you left here there and deserted her."

"No! No! No! I didn't!" the mother shouted. "I left the child with my father. He was going to take her to an institution for her health."

Hospital attendants said that when the child was brought there she was unable to speak and responded with fear to all gestures of kindliness.

The law stepped in after the girl was identified by foster parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Harbold, of New Cumberland, Pa., who said they had kept her for three years until the mother took her three weeks ago.

Detective Harold Hill said Mrs. Gootkin and her father brought the little girl here September 19, to find a home or hospital for her.

Dr. John Frosch, Belluve senior psychiatrist, said Mrs. Gootkin had told him the girl's father had died in an automobile accident two months before six-year-old Gertrude Louise was born. Dr. Frosch added that the mother,

Fuehrer Says Russian City Is Sure to Fall; 10,000 Nazi Wounded Hear Talk

Defies British

Hitler Says Complete Defenses Baffle 'Second Front'

By ROGER D. GREENE
(Associated Press War Editor)

Adolf Hitler told a Nazi party rally in Berlin today that Stalingrad was bound to fall and in an apparently less confident mood than usual declared that "we believe we shall continue to defeat our enemies until final victory is our."

Just a year ago, the Fuehrer boasted that "the enemy already is broken and will never rise again."

Ten thousand wounded Germans listened as Hitler addressed a galaxy of Nazi party chiefs and war leaders in the Berlin sportspalast.

Hitler defied the British to invade Europe, no matter where, asserting that "they can deem themselves lucky if they stay for nine hours on the continent, as at Dieppe, for we have made thorough preparations to welcome them.

"We are determined,' he went on, "to hold this year what we have and to attack where we believe it to be necessary."

Soviet headquarters reported today that the Red armies, surging down upon the German left flank, had defeated two Nazi divisions along the flaming 40-mile corridor between the Don and Volga rivers, while inside Stalingrad, the crisis remained acute.

New Sector Taken

A bulletin from German field headquarters said a new section of northern Stalingrad had been taken by storm.

Despite staggering losses, the Germans continued to throw great masses of troops into the 37-day-old assault, and the army newspaper Red Star declared gravely:

"Conditions in the city remain serious. The Germans have big losses, but the attacks do not lessen and violence grows."

Nevertheless, the Russians still displayed no sign of collapse after withstanding more than five weeks of violent assault. And as September ended, confidence rose in both Soviet and British quarters in London that the Red armies had blighted Hitler's two most cherished aims of 1942:

A new onsalught against Moscow.

Conquest of Russia's rich Tiflis-Baku oil region.

Soviet War News, published by the Russian embassy in London, declared that after 'having lost several dozen picked divisions, squandered several thousand tanks and planes and strewn every captured mile with their own dead, the Germans have failed to achieve victory."

Soviet gunners were reported to have slaughtered more than 1,500 Germans yesterday as the invaders launched repeated, futile attacks to widen a wedge in Stalingrad's northwest section.

"The enemy suffered particularly heavy losses in trying to capture one height," the Russian command said. "In this battle, the enemy lost over 700 men."

Red Star said the Germans, fearing sudden night attacks, were sending rockets flaring through the skies and floating down by parachutes to light the battle scene.

Dry grass blazed across the steppes northwest of the city, shrouding the countryside with a pall of yellow, acrid smoke.

While acknowledging the gravity of the situation within Stalingrad, Red Star declared that Russian troops had repulsed Nazi shock forces which knifed into a factory district on the northwest outskirts Monday.

Only the sparsest details were forthcoming on street fighting inside the Volga metropolis, with Red Army headquarters announcing merely that "our troops fought fierce engagements against enemy tanks and motorized infantry . . . a guard mortar unit commanded by Nikitin wiped out 800 Hitlerites."

Nor did the Soviet command divulge more than the bare announcement that two German divisions had been routed by relief attacks on the north flank, where Marshal Semeon Timoshenko has been hacking at the Nazi "barrier" guarding the main German siege armies.

Dispatches to the Soviet newspaper Comsomol Pravda declared that "the initiative remains in our hands" on the northwest steppes, although the Germans were reported massing tremendous forces to replace defeated divisions.

On the central (Moscow) front,

Group Still Hunts For Missing Auto

Search in Raging Esopus for Car and Occupants Is Unsuccessful

Search for the missing automobile which went through a guard rail at Cold Brook Sunday and disappeared in the swollen waters of the Esopus creek at Cold Brook was still going on today with no trace of the car being found. It is feared that Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Van Demark and Miss Mary Terwilliger of Tabasco were the occupants of the car since they have been reported missing from their home since Sunday when they started for Andes. Driving a black Chevrolet coupe, Mr. Van Demark and his companions announced they were going to Andes and since then they have been unreported.

The car which went into the swollen creek Sunday afternoon about 6 o'clock was reported to have been a black Chevrolet coupe.

Reports that the car had been found two miles down stream Tuesday afternoon were unfounded. No trace of the car has been found since it was seen floating down stream several hundred feet from the point where it broke through the frail guard rail. At the time it was gradually sinking in the muddy waters of the Esopus.

State Troopers, deputy sheriffs and forest rangers continued to search the stream, using sounding weights in an effort to contact the car. High water and the muddy condition of the creek still continues to hamper the search.

The Esopus was dropping steadily and was reported to have dropped nearly a foot in the past 24 hours.

Soldiers to Hear Games

Washington, D. C., Sept. 30—The American Red Cross announced today that the 1942 World Series baseball games will be broadcast by short wave to United States servicemen in Australia and the southwest Pacific islands. In cooperation with the Office of War Information, the American Red Cross has arranged for specially condensed 45-minute accounts of the games to be short waved across the Pacific by Station KWID, San Francisco. The O. W. I. will condense the games for short wave and the Red Cross has arranged for re-broadcast in Australia.

14 Germans Sentenced

London, Sept. 30 (AP)—Reuters, in a dispatch datelined "On The German Frontier," said today that 14 Germans had been sentenced to death and executed at Mannheim on charges of having helped form a Communist party unit.

Hitler Tells Rally 'Victory Is Ours'

Russian shock troops marshaled in such secrecy that they were not allowed to smoke were reported to have cut through the "line of the Fuehrer" above Rzhev, 130 miles northwest of Moscow, in an attack launched after a barrage by hundreds of guns.

Germans Go Into Retreat

Pravda dispatches said the Russians, fighting in autumn-colored woods where red and yellow leaves mingled with the green of firs, drove the Germans into retreat and reached a curve on the upper Volga.

The "line of the fuehrer" was apparently the system of heavily fortified defenses erected by the Germans for the past 11 months around Rzhev, a key Nazi stronghold. Trenches, underground communications, mine fields, wire barricades and three lines of fire points guarded the zone.

Far to the south, in the Caucasus, strong Red Army forces were reported to have stemmed a series of attacks by reinforced German columns seeking to break down through the Terek valley toward the Grozny oil fields.

The Russians said the fighting throughout the Caucasus was becoming more severe as snow lines crept farther down the mountains and German alpine troops attempted to capture strategic passes before deep winter sets in.

On the Black Sea coast, in the northwest Caucasus, the Russians said they had routed the 12th Rumanian mountain division below Novorossisk. Red Navy Marines were credited with capturing a height, destroying 45 dugouts, seven block houses and four headquarters, and killing 500 Axis troops.

A Berlin broadcast said German troops driving down the coast had reached the suburbs of Tuapse, Black Sea naval base 75 miles below Novorossisk, and that the battle for the port had begun.

Other Developments

Other developments in the global war:

Egyptian front—All quiet.

Air war—British rescue workers dug in the ruins of a bomb-smashed boys' school in southern England, searching for 18 boys still reported missing and believed either dead or entombed alive in the wreckage.

Twenty-two boys and two teachers were known dead as a result of yesterday's German air attack; 34 others were injured.

Dieppe post mortem — Prime Minister Churchill, commenting on the commando raid at Dieppe, August 19, told the House of Commons in London that Allied losses were "nearly half of the total" troops involved.

Churchill said British tanks were held up by the "altogether unexpected strength" of German defense blocks guarding the ends of Dieppe's streets.

Far Pacific—Gen. Douglas MacArthur's headquarters reported that Australian jungle fighters had captured the first objective of their New Guinea offensive, sent the Japanese fleeing northward and seized quantities of abandoned enemy equipment.

"Our advance continues," Gen. MacArthur said.

Dispatches said Allied troops first seized the Ioribaiwa ridge, only 32 miles from Port Moresby, and then set out in pursuit of the retreating Japanese toward Nauro, 10 miles north of the ridge.

No further reports were forthcoming on the battles of the Solomon or Aleutian Islands.

Uptown Cave-in Reveals Old Type Fire Cistern

Days of the hand-drawn fire fighting apparatus in Kingston were recalled on Tuesday afternoon at 5 o'clock when there was a big cave-in of the pavement on North Front street, near Washington avenue.

Acting Superintendent Max Oppenheimer of the Board of Public Works, said today that the cave-in occurred over an old fire cistern in the street. This was one of the many cisterns in the city many years ago.

These cisterns were used by the volunteer firemen of those early days to pump water onto the fires that broke out.

Mr. Oppenheimer said that he had a crew of men filling in this old cistern so that there would be no further cave-ins caused by it.

Boston Common Is Plowed

Boston, Sept. 30 (AP)—A 22,000-square-foot section of Boston Common is being plowed up to become a Victory Garden. Mayor Maurice J. Tobin, driving the first furrow behind a horsedrawn plow yesterday, said winter rye would be planted this fall to enrich the soil for next spring, when potatoes, corn, cabbages, carrots, beans and other vegetables will be planted. The produce will go to help feed patients and inmates of Boston's hospitals and institutions.

Women to Meet

Due to the home nursing course meeting on Wednesday evenings, the regular meeting of the Rifton Ladies' Aid Society will be held on Thursday evening, October 8 at the home of Mrs. Edward Balfe. Since this is the last meeting before the chicken supper at Rifton Hall October 22, the president would like all members to attend.

Brazil's Bank Holiday

Rio de Janeiro, Sept. 30 (AP)—An eight-day bank holiday, which includes suspension of commercial debt payments, went into effect throughout Brazil today as a war measure. President Vargas proclaimed the holiday last night, declaring it necessary for economic mobilization of the nation's resources.

At the arraignment today, Murray contended that Miller "if guilty of anything, would be guilty of an error in judgment."

Fagan said that when he pressed Miller for a further explanation of what he meant by "my mind went smack," the grandfather struck the palm of his hand against his forehead to illustrate.

Miller was released after a Surety Company provided bond.

New York, Sept. 30 (AP)—Stocks gave up a little ground today as the market awaited final action of Congress on the administration's Anti-Inflation Bill.

For a time in the early proceedings a fair number of leaders held small gains but many of these were erased before the fourth hour by light selling. A few specialties were in demand at higher prices.

Santa Fe, which was buoyant yesterday, slipped back with industrials. Other rails were lower as a rule.

A bit soft most of the time were U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Chrysler, Douglas Aircraft, Westinghouse, Dow Chemical and Homestake Mining.

Laclede Gas preferred pushed up about 5 points at the best while the common backed off a point or so. Receiving support were American Airlines and Goodyear.

Bonds and commodities were steady.

Women Now Have Chance To Learn Machine Trade

An opportunity for women physically fit, between the ages of 21 to 40, who desire to do their bit in defense work will be afforded by the starting of a new class for women in machine shop practice and related subjects.

Women who successfully complete the course will be given jobs in local defense plants.

The class will start Monday, October 5, at the Kingston Vocational School, adjoining the Kingston High School, and the hours will be from 4 o'clock in the afternoon until 7 o'clock at night.

Hubert Hoderath of the high school faculty, who has charge of the vocational school, will have charge of the new class which will meet daily at the same hours, except Saturdays, when no session of the class will be held.

Women who desire to register for this class should do so at the U. S. Employment Office at 243 Fair street. George Stanton is in charge of the local office.

There is also room for an additional man to fill in various openings in the machine shop courses at the vocational school.

Vicchiano Is Acquitted of Old Murder Charge

Belmont, N. Y., Sept. 30 (AP)—Luigi Vicchiano, 64, acquitted of a 32-year-old first degree murder charge, is going home to the Birmingham, Ala., grocery store he conducted for the past 30 years.

It took an Allegany county Supremen Court jury 38 minutes yesterday to free him of the old indictment accusing him of slaying Constable Norman Chalker, who was trying to quiet a street disturbance in nearby Belfast.

The father of 15 children, eight living, "just felt happy" at the verdict and said he intended to enter a hospital for an operation.

"I am glad I can return to my family and live the few years remaining in quiet," he asserted. "I have no grudge against those who swore against me. I don't know who killed the officer. I was not there. I felt all along that I would be vindicated."

Vicchiano, one of several persons indicted for the 1910 murder, was the second acquitted. The other was Vito Frucci, tried shortly after the killing.

Three German and three Italian aliens also were held for questioning by U. S. District Attorney Ralph L. Emmons, Cornelius added. Contraband confiscated included 14 short-wave receiving radios, 12 cameras, eight shotguns, one pistol, four pairs of field glasses, 125 rounds of ammunition, and some photographic equipment.

Senate Votes Out Parity Section

Compromise Would Give Right to Lift Ceilings

Washington, Sept. 30 (AP)—The Senate voted today to strip from the administration's Anti-Inflation legislation a provision changing farm parity standards, inserting instead a compromise amendment directing the lifting of farm price ceilings where they did not reflect labor and other cost increases since Jan. 1, 1941.

The amendment was offered by Democratic Leader Barkley, of Kentucky.

The vote was 86 to 4.

It would require that an "adequate wage" should be accorded to farm labor in computing the increased costs over those prevailing on January 1, 1941, which farmers have had to bear in producing crops.

Its adoption ended an eight-day controversy between the administration and the Senate farm bloc over the terms governing the proposed directive to President Roosevelt to stabilize prices, wages and salaries at Sept. 15 levels, so far as practical.

In going along with the revised Barkley proposal, the farm bloc surrendered an advantage it gained yesterday when it forced insertion into the bill of a provision requiring the recalculation of present parity standards upward to include farm labor costs.

A similar amendment, to which President Roosevelt has said he was "unalterably opposed," previously had been written into the Anti-Inflation measure when it passed the house.

Flashes of Life Sketched in Brief

(By The Associated Press)

Finders Keepers

Cincinnati — David Mitchell, 29, a fugitive from the Lima State Hospital for the Insane, was captured recently with $6,190.

He first said he found the money in a house, then a second house, and a third.

The house owners claimed the money.

Judge Louis J. Schneider threw up his hands, said "the source of the money remains a mystery to this court," and awarded it to Mitchell.

The court labeled Mitchell's story "unworthy of belief," but ruled the others had established no claim.

Sound Sleeper

Kansas City — Thomas Smith, 55, sat on a downtown curb to rest—and fell asleep.

Awakened by a sharp pain in his left foot, he was taken to the hospital where examination revealed a fractured bone.

"I guess a car must have run over me," he speculated.

Preparedness

Chicago — Auctioneer Erwin F. Dygert reported he had little trouble in selling about 100 horses at a sale in the Dexter Park pavilion. Prices, however, were moderate, the top being about $230. Some who purchased horses also bought buggies, prices ranging from $10 to $300. Dygert said most of the buyers were rural residents, apparently fearful that gas rationing would create transportation problems.

Sad Reunion

Chicago — Joe Irzyk worked for a month as a mash cooker before the still was seized by federal alcohol tax agents.

When Chester Kosloa and John S. Esposito went into Federal Court for trial on charges of operating the still they saw Irzyk among government witnesses.

"What's he doing here?" they asked.

"He's a special agent for the alcohol tax unit."

Both entered pleas of guilty.

Stamps IN THE NEWS

By the AP Feature Service

Space was found in transatlantic mail for the July-September issue of the Philatelic Journal of Great Britain, which is noteworthy if for no other reason than its assurance that this present disagreeable phase of our history has to end sometime. For the Journal is in its 52nd volume and has weathered more wars than one. Engravings are understandably few, but the 74 pages are filled with the usual technical and general information. One article sounds a warning against wartime fakes engineered by double impressions and transfers.

New Zealand has issued three additional values of its "war print" which include the 2-shilling postage and revenue stamp pictured here, a 6d in red which shows a harvest scene, and a one-shilling in green which pictures a bird. The 2-shilling, portraying Capt. Cook at Poverty Bay, October 6, 1879, is in a gray-green. In this set, according to J. & H. Stolow, New York dealers, the color tones are out of the ordinary, as well as the line perforation of 13½:14.

The Free French have issued a set of 14 stamps, in franc and centimes values, for the tiny islands of St. Pierre and Miquelon, last of the French colonies in North America. The islands are located off the south coast of Newfoundland and are divided by a channel. All the stamps, as the 30 centimes green-black shown here, picture a sailing vessel which would appear to be a brigantine.

A cover received by this department from Argentina carries a new 15-centavo stamp from the South American republic, in addition to the 1-peso airmail. The 15-centavo is in a light blue and in an oval is a bull's head. Inscription within the oval is "Ganaderia," which is Spanish for the breeding of cattle. A new and companion stamp is a 15-c also in light blue, bearing a portrait of Martin Guemes, one of Argentina's heroes in its battle for independence in the days of San Martin. Guemes, born in 1785, died on the battlefield in 1821.

Hitler's birthday, April 20th, was again celebrated by issue of a new postage stamp, according to J. and H. Stolow, whose correspondents from a neutral country report that four additional stamps in native drawings came out of Bohemia-Moravia. The design is reported to be a portrait of Hitler in lecture stance. The stamps are not imported in this country.

MOTHER, DAUGHTER RE-UNITED

This is five-year-old Gertrude Louise Miller and her mother, Mrs. Ruth Gootkin, 22, of New Haven, Conn., after they were re-united in New York city. Mrs. Gootkin and her father, Charles R. Miller, 50, the child's grandfather, also of New Haven, have been detained by police pending an investigation of the case. The child was found in Grand Central Station in New York city and remained unidentified for nine days.

Old Scrap Is Valuable, Because So Little Is Lost During Reprocessing

mander in Chief has to rely on you for about 7,000,000 tons between now and January 1.

This years expected tonnage of steel is expected to be about 85,000,000 tons. Of this about 46,750,000 tons will be made from scrap.

The industry itself however contributes 60 per cent of the scrap. For instance about 30 per cent of every ingot of scrap which goes back into the furnace.

Production Will Speed

If you do better than the 17,000,000 tons, you will be directly speeding the steel production toward the military goal. You will have to do a little better to maintain even the average, because industry now is not able to furnish all the 60 per cent of scrap. Some of it goes abroad in Lend-Lease shipments.

An so that vague personality you have known all your lives merely as the junkman, now suddenly becomes one of the most vital production soldiers.

This is how it works. Your shovel, and Mr. Morgan's locomotive, go to a scrap yard. There are 6,500 of these scrap yards in the United States. There are 5,000 to 6,000 one-man operations in addition. And on top of that about 50,000 men who have been called merely peddlers. And then about 200,000 more who are the scrap yard workers, and it's a hard, skilled business.

This unknown army is waiting. Steel mills which normally have six weeks scrap on hand now have only two weeks. Don't be fooled by the apparent size of the auto graveyards. On February 1 last there were 1,500,000 cars in those graveyards—today just about 400,000.

And the auto graveyards situation is somewhat of a pity because the cars contain some 125 different special steels. They have furnished most of the steel to make airplane engines and the vital parts of the tanks, planes and guns.

Your shovel, and everybody's contribution, goes, usually in a gondola car, to one end of a scrap yard. Huge swinging magnets lift out the metal and pile it one, two stories high.

Experts sort and divide it into three classes. One is No. 1 heavy melting scrap. Acetylene torches and shears cut this class into pieces no more than five feet long, not more than 18 inches wide, and at least ¼ inch thick stuff. No chromium, nickel, vanadium or tungsten are included in this pile.

The second class is small, light pieces, not over three feet long nor more than 15 inches wide. Some of these go into electric furnaces to make the very high quality steels, such as for plane engines. Electric furnaces require from 90 per cent scrap upward, sometimes using scrap only.

Scrap Is Baled

Third is the baled scrap—smaller stuff, compressed by hydraulic machines into cubic bundles, 20 inches on a side, and averaging about 350 pounds each.

There is one lucky break. If the deliberate purpose of the scrap men had been to mine the American household, the location of the yards could not have been better chosen. The scrap mines are distributed according to density of population, mute testimony that for making steel, the people themselves are one of the great mine sources.

The size of the job which has bloomed since Pearl Harbor dwarfs the scrap sent to Japan, one of the now bitter regrets. Over the 10 years up to 1940, Japan took 11,600,000 tons of scrap. About two-thirds of what you, the American citizen, is asked to produce this year.

There is some reason to believe that at least until recently Japan had most of that scrap, holding it as a stock pile for war. Japan's rated annual steel-making capacity has been 7,200,000 tons. Italy's was 3,000,000, Germany's 24,700,000. A total of 34,900,000.

The Axis nations probably have raised these figures. Also they have a lot of occupied or dominated steel sources, raising the grand total to around 61,000,000 tons, estimated, annually.

American capacity soon will be 90,000,000 tons. England's rating has been 20,000,000 and Russia's 21,800,000. That more than doubles the Axis resources. Even so, your shovel, and your personal contributions as American citizens, make about 13 per cent now.

Call For Pictures At Freeman Offices

All persons who have left or sent pictures to either one of the Freeman offices are asked to call for the originals.

Since so many service men's pictures are now being published, it is becoming a serious problem to keep pictures for indefinite periods. To date there are 59 unclaimed photos at the branch office on Fair street and 140 service men and society pictures at the main office, Freeman Square.

Persons are asked to kindly call for pictures following publication in The Freeman. In the future pictures will not be held indefinitely.

Fewer Lives Are Lost, With Saving of 1,550 Due to Decrease in Amount of Driving

Chicago, Sept. 30 (AP)—Fewer lives were lost in traffic accidents in the United States last month than in any August on record, the National Safety Council reported today.

Fatalities dropped 40 per cent below the same month a year ago, and the total of 2,310 was lower than in any August as far back as 1926, the earliest year for which national monthly totals are available.

The council said the reduction represented a saving of 1,550 lives. It reported the downward trend was general throughout the country, and that for the first time not a single state reported an increase for August.

But the American motorist wasn't credited for the life-saving. Sidney J. Williams, director of the council's public safety division explained:

"The reduction in x x x deaths is, mathematically, exactly what it should be in terms of the decreased mileage now being driven. In other words, our surveys of accident experience throughout the country during the last few months show that while there has been a decided decrease in the amount of driving there has been no change in the quality of driving.

"The effect of lower rates of speed has been offset by such factors as the deterioration mechanically of automobiles, tires in progressively less safe condition, reduced personnel in traffic police forces and conscious or subconscious war jitters which distract and preoccupy both drivers and pedestrains."

The council reported the traffic toll for the first eight months of this year dropped 21 per cent from the same period of 1941. The figures were 19,150 deaths against 24,170 last year.

Motor vehicle deaths in the gas-rationed states were down 45 per cent in August," it said. "Not only were these reductions equalled and exceeded in other parts of the country, however but the North Atlantic region continued to have by far the smallest cumulative reduction in fatalities for the year."

Atlanta led cities of 250,000 or more population with cumulative reductions for the eight month period. Toledo, Los Angeles, Minneapolis and Columbus followed in that order, all with drops of 30 per cent or more. Atlanta's was 42 per cent.

Three large cities, Dallas, St. Paul and Birmingham, Ala., had perfect records for August. Mt. Vernon, N. Y., with a population of 67,400, was the largest city in the nation to have a perfect record for the first eight months.

Milwaukee, New York and Boston ranked one, two, three in the eight-month death rate listings for cities of 500,000 or more population.

Group Still Hunts For Missing Auto

Search in Raging Esopus for Car and Occupants Is Unsuccessful

Search for the missing automobile which went through a guard rail at Cold Brook Sunday and disappeared in the swollen waters of the Esopus creek at Cold Brook was still going on today with no trace of the car being found. It is feared that Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Van Demark and Miss Mary Terwilliger of Tabasco were the occupants of the car since they have been reported missing from their home since Sunday when they started for Andes. Driving a black Chevrolet coupe, Mr. Van Demark and his companions announced they were going to Andes and since then they have been unreported.

The car which went into the swollen creek Sunday afternoon about 6 o'clock was reported to have been a black Chevrolet coupe.

Reports that the car had been found two miles down stream Tuesday afternoon were unfounded. No trace of the car has been found since it was seen floating down stream several hundred feet from the point where it broke through the frail guard rail. At the time it was gradually sinking in the muddy waters of the Esopus.

State Troopers, deputy sheriffs and forest rangers continued to search the stream, using sounding weights in an effort to contact the car. High water and the muddy condition of the creek still continues to hamper the search.

The Esopus was dropping steadily and was reported to have dropped nearly a foot in the past 24 hours.

Russian shock troops marshaled in such secrecy that they were not allowed to smoke were reported to have cut through the "line of the Fuehrer" above Rzhev, 130 miles northwest of Moscow, in an attack launched after a barrage by hundreds of guns.

Germans Go Into Retreat

Pravda dispatches said the Russians, fighting in autumn-colored woods where red and yellow leaves mingled with the green of firs, drove the Germans into retreat and reached a curve on the upper Volga.

The "line of the fuehrer" was apparently the system of heavily fortified defenses erected by the Germans for the past 11 months around Rzhev, a key Nazi stronghold. Trenches, underground communications, mine fields, wire barricades and three lines of fire points guarded the zone.

Far to the south, in the Caucasus, strong Red Army forces were reported to have stemmed a series of attacks by reinforced German columns seeking to break down through the Terek valley toward the Grozny oil fields.

The Russians said the fighting throughout the Caucasus was becoming more severe as snow lines crept farther down the mountains and German alpine troops attempted to capture strategic passes before deep winter sets in.

On the Black Sea coast, in the northwest Caucasus, the Russians said they had routed the 12th Rumanian mountain division below Novorossisk. Red Navy Marines were credited with capturing a height, destroying 45 dugouts, seven block houses and four headquarters, and killing 500 Axis troops.

A Berlin broadcast said German troops driving down the coast had reached the suburbs of Tuapse, Black Sea naval base 75 miles below Novorossisk, and that the battle for the port had begun.

Other Developments

Other developments in the global war:

Egyptian front—All quiet.

Air war—British rescue workers dug in the ruins of a bomb-smashed boys' school in southern England, searching for 18 boys still reported missing and believed either dead or entombed alive in the wreckage.

Twenty-two boys and two teachers were known dead as a result of yesterday's German air attack; 34 others were injured.

Dieppe post mortem — Prime Minister Churchill, commenting on the commando raid at Dieppe, August 19, told the House of Commons in London that Allied losses were "nearly half of the total" troops involved.

Churchill said British tanks were held up by the "altogether unexpected strength" of German defense blocks guarding the ends of Dieppe's streets.

Far Pacific—Gen. Douglas MacArthur's headquarters reported that Australian jungle fighters had captured the first objective of their New Guinea offensive, sent the Japanese fleeing northward and seized quantities of abandoned enemy equipment.

"Our advance continues," Gen. MacArthur said.

Dispatches said Allied troops first seized the Ioribaiwa ridge, only 32 miles from Port Moresby, and then set out in pursuit of the retreating Japanese toward Nauro, 10 miles north of the ridge.

No further reports were forthcoming on the battles of the Solomon or Aleutian Islands.

rapid succession into the crowd in the left field bleachers.

Looking their usual calm and confident selves, the Yanks finally ambled across the field to their dugout just as the noon whistles were tooting. The Cards at that time had been at batting practice for a full hour.

The Yanks in their gray road uniforms looked like much bigger men than their youthful series opponents, and the crowd greeted them with a sort of silent awe. Uptown Cave-in Reveals Old Type Fire Cistern

Days of the hand-drawn fire fighting apparatus in Kingston were recalled on Tuesday afternoon at 5 o'clock when there was a big cave-in of the pavement on North Front street, near Washington avenue.

Acting Superintendent Max Oppenheimer of the Board of Public Works, said today that the cave-in occurred over an old fire cistern in the street. This was one of the many cisterns in the city many years ago.

These cisterns were used by the volunteer firemen of those early days to pump water onto the fires that broke out.

Mr. Oppenheimer said that he had a crew of men filling in this old cistern so that there would be no further cave-ins caused by it.

At the arraignment today, Murray contended that Miller "if guilty of anything, would be guilty of an error in judgment."

Fagan said that when he pressed Miller for a further explanation of what he meant by "my mind went smuck," the grandfather struck the palm of his hand against his forehead to illustrate.

Miller was released after a Surety Company provided bond.

New York, Sept. 30 (AP)—Stocks gave up a little ground today as the market awaited final action of Congress on the administration's Anti-Inflation Bill.

For a time in the early proceedings a fair number of leaders held small gains but many of these were erased before the fourth hour by light selling. A few specialties were in demand at higher prices.

Santa Fe, which was buoyant yesterday, slipped back with industrials. Other rails were lower as a rule.

A bit soft most of the time were U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Chrysler, Douglas Aircraft, Westinghouse, Dow Chemical and Homestake Mining.

Laclede Gas preferred pushed up about 5 points at the best while the common backed off a point or so. Receiving support were American Airlines and Goodyear.

Bonds and commodities were steady.

Vicchiano Is Acquitted of Old Murder Charge

Belmont, N. Y., Sept. 30 (AP)—Luigi Vicchiano, 64, acquitted of a 32-year-old first degree murder charge, is going home to the Birmingham, Ala., grocery store he conducted for the past 30 years.

It took an Allegany county Supremen Court jury 38 minutes yesterday to free him of the old indictment accusing him of slaying Constable Norman Chalker, who was trying to quiet a street disturbance in nearby Belfast.

The father of 15 children, eight living, "just felt happy" at the verdict and said he intended to enter a hospital for an operation.

"I am glad I can return to my family and live the few years remaining in quiet," he asserted. "I have no grudge against those who swore against me. I don't know who killed the officer. I was not there. I felt all along that I would be vindicated."

Vicchiano, one of several persons indicted for the 1910 murder, was the second acquitted. The other was Vito Frucci, tried shortly after the killing.

Senate Votes Out Parity Section

Compromise Would Give Right to Lift Ceilings

Washington, Sept. 30, (AP)—The Senate voted today to strip from the administration's Anti-Inflation legislation a provision changing farm parity standards, inserting instead a compromise amendment directing the lifting of farm price ceilings where they did not reflect labor and other cost increases since Jan. 1, 1941.

The amendment was offered by Democratic Leader Barkley, of Kentucky.

The vote was 86 to 4.

It would require that an "adequate wage" should be accorded to farm labor in computing the increased costs over those prevailing on January 1, 1941, which farmers have had to bear in producing crops.

Its adoption ended an eight-day controversy between the administration and the Senate farm bloc over the terms governing the proposed directive to President Roosevelt to stabilize prices, wages and salaries at Sept. 15 levels, so far as practical.

In going along with the revised Barkley proposal, the farm bloc surrendered an advantage it gained yesterday when it forced insertion into the bill of a provision requiring the recalculation of present parity standards upward to include farm labor costs.

A similar amendment, to which President Roosevelt has said he was "unalterably opposed," previously had been written into the Anti-Inflation measure when it passed the house.

KEY COLLECTION

The National Key Collection Campaign now underway promises a flow of fighting metal, which is urgently needed by the Navy. Pasteboard boxes, labeled Key Kans, have been placed in public buildings, stores and other frequented places throughout the city and persons who have useless keys are asked to drop them in the "kans".

The number of useless keys to doors, desks, trunks, padlocks, etc., which have been kept in a corner of a drawer, the past utility of which has long been forgotten, must run into large numbers. These useless keys can now be given to Uncle Sam for ships, tanks and fighting machinery. Flat keys of the Yale and Corbin type are said to be nearly eighty percent nickel silver.

There is a key-hold your useless keys will fit. It is the Victory Key Kans. Drop yours in now.

CHAIN STORE BASEBALL

The triumph of the St. Louis Cardinals in the National League shows the value of the chain store system. Though the New York Yankees in the American League had already proved this, the fact had been obscured by their coming from New York. It seemed natural that the metropolis should have the richest owners and therefore the best team. This explanation ignored the failure, in recent years, of the New York Giants. Other teams, notably the Chicago Cubs, have had heavy pocket-books back of them, yet have not approached the record of either the Cardinals or Yankees. In the last ten years the Yankees have won six pennants, twice finished second, and once, by a bare margin, third. The Cardinals have won five pennants, finished second twice and third three times, in the last 16 years. No other club can match this.

The chain store system is what its name indicates. The major league team owns a series of minor league clubs, at least one for every class of professional ball. This means several places whence players can be drawn, and several clubs of varying degrees of skill with which to place a promising athlete for training. They thus have a constant supply of promising material. Other clubs, lacking these facilities, may be strong one year, weak for some years following. Connie Mack's Philadelphia Athletics, pennant-winners in 1931, had by 1935 gone to pieces so badly that they finished last, and have not been far from there any year since. This was because their supply of new stars depended on chance.

SNARLED UP

The worst obstacle to progess in the war may be the red tape. Able and energetic men are driven frantic by the way they get snarled up in it when they want to be doing something. Chairman Lou E. Holland of the Smaller War Plants Corporation has been telling a congressional committee how it goes.

This capable business man from Kansas City, heading a $150,000,000 outfit meant to help small business, says he discovered "some things he didn't anticipate."

He wanted his own personnel director, and picked a good man, but had to give him up because he was a lawyer, and lawyers serving in that capacity were forbidden.

Then he undertook to hire 300 top-notch mechanics but found that he couldn't have them because they were not on civil service rolls. He needed highly trained men to help train small business men in war goods manufacture, and wasn't even allowed to run newspaper ads to get them.

It really seems as if there should be somewhere, in the vast and complex Washington system, an occasional oasis of benevolent dictatorship, where practical patriots could break through the interference and get essential things done promptly.

BUY MORE WAR BONDS

There is a great deal of talk at this time concerning proposals for enforced purchasing of War Bonds. Some such plan as this may become inevitable under any circumstances. And it is certain to be adopted in the relatively near future unless the people substantially increase their voluntary purchasing of Bonds and Stamps.

The Treasury some time ago established a goal of $1,000,000,000 worth of Bond and Stamp sales monthly. That goal has not been reached. It must be reached and passed if the war is to be properly financed, and if excess purchasing power, the creator of inflation, is to be reduced.

The public has responded fairly well to these drives—but not well enough. In these days, when wages are at record levels and almost any man or woman can quickly obtain a good job, all of us can afford to take all or part of our change in Stamps when we stop in stores. All of us can afford to buy one or more Bonds each pay day. Certainly, giving up some luxuries is a mighty small price to pay to help the war effort along. The duty of every American is plain—to cut his personal expenditures severely, and to put the money into War Savings. Remember that the next time you go to a bank or to a retail store featuring Bonds and Stamps.

They say an army "travels on its stomach," and those boys in the Solomon Island jungles know all about it.

A good way not to win this war is for any economic bunch to try to get something out of it besides victory.

The Russians prove that block-by-block defense is the way to block Hitler.

MENTAL HYGIENE CLINICS

A few years ago the statement was made that at the present rate of increase in the number of mental cases in any and all communities, within fifty years it would mean that at least one half the population would require mental care. Naturally health departments everywhere are trying to prevent this condition by various means.

Today mental institutions by regular and special forms of treatment, by the help of visiting or resident specialists—throat, teeth, heart, lungs, and others — are able to send back to home and business about six in every ten patients admitted.

Where the greatest progress is being made, however, is the recognition of the "early" symptoms and signs of mental ailments by the family and general physician, and the sending of these early cases to a mental or psychiatric clinic.

If the average taxpayer stopped to think of what it costs to keep just one patient in a mental institution, he would gladly pay a few cents extra yearly to prevent it.

Dr. Victor H. Vogel of the United States Health Service, as recorded by Science Service states:

"It would not cost taxpayers a cent if their local health services added Mental Hygiene Clinics to their child health clinics and other services. Such clinics would prevent mental breakdowns and so reduce the number of patients cared for in mental hospitals. Mental illness is the most expensive kind because of its long duration. If only three people a year are saved from becoming public charges in a mental institution, that means enough money saved to support a Mental Hygiene Clinic for an entire year."

The saving of money is but the least of the benefits of a mental clinic. It cannot be compared with the saving of human life and happiness.

Mental hygiene clinics help people whose lives are threatened by other dangers too. A divorce can sometimes be prevented, a home kept intact, a suicide prevented, a nervous or neurotic patient saved from being an invalid for life. That is a gain to the whole community.

As it is known that mental illness makes up one half of all illness and disability, it can readily be seen what it means to a community to have a full time mental hygiene department in each state or province health department.

"AT CENTURY'S TURN"

By H. L. VAN DEUSEN

In the years at the turn of the century one of the best known men in Kingston was the late John E. Kraft, for many years active in Democratic politics. Mr. Kraft had served the city as mayor during 1890-91, and was widely known as a newspaper editor for a number of years.

I recall that on Tuesday evening, December 7, 1926, that Kingston Lodge, No. 10, F. & A. M., held a dual celebration observing Craftsmen's Night and the 50th anniversary of Mr. Kraft being raised a Master Mason in that lodge.

For years Mr. Kraft was active in Masonic affairs, and he was the author of an interesting history of Masonic activities in Kingston.

In honor of his 50th anniversary as a Mason, the lodge presented him with a Masonic ring that night.

It is also interesting to recall that on December 5, 1916, the Common Council named the new street between Emerick and Stephan streets, Hazel street, in honor of the daughter of Alderman George Schick of the Third Ward.

Alderman Schick served that ward as its representative in the council for several terms. He was one of the best known railroad men in Kingston, and was an engineer on the old Ulster & Delaware railroad for a number of years.

In November, 1916, work of erecting the huge tabernacle on Delaware avenue for the Peacock evangelistic campaign, was started. The campaign officially opened on December 31, of that year and continued for a period of six weeks.

At the close of the campaign the Board of Public Works took over the building and used it as a warehouse until it was torn down.

The Peacock campaign was sponsored by the Rondout Presbyterian Church, the Wurts Street Baptist Church and Trinity Methodist Church, and proved one of the most successful evangelistic campaigns ever held in the city.

The evangelist, the Rev. Luther Peacock, before he engaged in evangelistic campaigns of his own, was a member of the Rev. Billy Sunday's evangelistic party.

"Bill" McAuliffe was elected captain of the Kingston High School baseball team for 1917 season at a meeting of the team held on November 22, 1916. Captain McAuliffe, for many years, was one of the leading ball players in the city.

I also recall that the Kingston Taxpayers Association was first organized on November 23, 1916, in a meeting of interested citizens held in Measter's Hall on Broadway, near Henry street. For years one of the most active members of the association was Jay Terry, well known brick manufacturer.

Farmer Is Chief Hindrance to Bills Which Might Halt or Prevent Inflation

By DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington, Sept. 30—The nation has been led to believe that the farmer is the main obstacle to the enactment of legislation to prevent inflation. While certain farm bloc leaders have agitated for higher prices to the farmer, the record will show that the administration itself not only has brought about the biggest factor in inflation—increase in purchasing power—but it has reserved for itself under the pending bill the right to continue to inflate wages and payrolls.

Looking back over the record, the biggest single inflationary force in the present high costs of the government's war program is the 40-hour week. There never has been and there is not now any reason why a work-week longer than 40 hours cannot be worked, but the insistence of the administration that the taxpayers shall pay for time-and-a-half on all overtime has increased the payrolls of America to fantastic heights.

Now when a manpower shortage looms, not a single word has come from the administration indicating that it wants America to work a 48-hour week for the same hourly rate of pay as the 40-hour week. On the contrary, as the work week lengthens, the cost of the war program will be increased and the government will find itself searching for a larger and larger amount of revenue from a minority of the population so as to meet the staggering war costs.

The reason why the Farm Bloc senators and representatives are so resentful of the criticism levelled lately by the thick-and-thin supporters of the administration is that the impression has been spread that the farm groups are alone responsible for inflation by demanding 110 per cent of parity, when the truth is the administration has forced up the costs of the things the farmer has to buy and has put into distribution billions of dollars of purchasing power that is not being siphoned off by taxation.

If the administration is to permit special privilege to one group, it will find other groups demanding the same thing. The farmers, through their representatives, are pointing to the fact that unskilled laborers are getting from $80 to $100 a week, including overtime payments, on some government projects, and that this is happening in areas near farm districts so that the farmer is finding it increasingly difficult to get labor.

The administration has consistently promoted the idea of higher and higher payrolls during the war period. The war labor board has stimulated demands for increased wages and finally, through the formula in the "Little Steel" case, ordered a wage increase. There has not been a single instance of wage decrease since the war started, though, to be sure, some requests for increases have been denied.

Now the President has been given power by the House of Representatives to "correct gross inequities," but it is not probable, judging by the record that any cut in wages will be ordered. Certainly the President has consistently resisted all efforts to put America on a 48-hour week, with straight time instead of overtime for all work between 40 and 48 hours a week.

The men in the armed services do not get overtime pay for their sixth day's work or double time for the seventh, yet the administration, through its spokesmen, this week has been endeavoring to give the impression that to stop inflation is to back up the men at the front. There would be far more support for the administration's fight against the demands of the farm group if there were any sign that the large city populations, where the administration's principal political support comes from, would be treated just as firmly as the farmer.

From a political viewpoint, the administration can forfeit all of the farm states. In the 1940 election, as in the 1936 election, the President got enough votes from nine big cities plus the solid south, to elect him even though he had lost all the rest of the cities and the farm areas. The Labor vote dominated those cities.

The house bill delegates to the President the power to manipulate wages, but the administration insists that the farmer's income shall meet a fixed level irrespective of what happens to wage costs. The administration will win its fight against the Farm Bloc—and should win it—but this will not stop inflation if the executive agencies continue to promote inflation by increasing wages and by refusing to cut down the premium for work over 40 hours a week.

Washington In Wartime

By Jack Stinnett

Washington — The Capital in Wartime:

A few days ago, in the federal prison at Milan, Mich., a fifth columnist got what was coming to him—and he didn't like it.

He was a member of a religious sect opposed to war but this fellow carried things a little too far. He dodged the draft. He was caught, tried and sentenced to a term in the penitentiary. That apparently taught him nothing. He became a trouble-maker — the prison's No. 1 problem child. He rebelled at everything. He tried to incite the other prisoners to violence. He damned the U. S. A.

* * *

Milan also is the "domicile" of a group of Nazis. Because of the danger of riots, the Nazis had been isolated from the other prisoners. Prison officials, finally at wit's-end with their fifth columnist, came to this conclusion: "All right, if he's such a Nazi lover, we'll just let him live with them."

He had been there some time when James V. Bennett, director of federal bureau of prisons, made a recent inspection tour at Milan. He came into the ward where the Nazis were held. A haggard fellow stepped out of the group. In pitiful tones, he pleaded with Bennett. His wail went something like this: "Please, sir, get me out of here. I'll be good from now on. I can't stand being in with these dirty Germans."

He's back with the regulars now and at last report was a model prisoner.

* * *

Everything happens to Washington in wartime. The latest is "standsit" transportation. These are buses and trolleys with seats only 18 inches apart and at such height from the floor that you only bend your knees to plank down on the narrow ledge that is laughingly referred to as a seat.

The "standsitters" are a brainchild of the War Production Board. They increase the capacity of trolleys and buses by 20 persons.

Washington is taking them with good humor, for the most part. The most serious complaints come from fat people who can't wedge into the seats at all; shorties who can't reach them; and the bean poles who can't standsit without barking their shins.

* * *

A visiting Nebraskan tell me that if you really want to find out about William M. Jeffers, the new rubber czar, go to North Platte where he was born.

The town has a Jeffers street and a Jeffers Park. The little house where "Willie" Jeffers was born is a city shrine. A few years ago when it was threatened with demolition to make way for a new street, the city fathers had it moved and restored.

The only other North Platte hero who can match "Bill" Jeffers in eminence is one "Buffalo Bill" Cody.

"Heart Not In It," Declares Speaker at Comforter Banquet

Declaring that too many Americans are "in this war with their head and hand but not with their heart," the Rev. Raymond O'Brien of West Park, speaking before the annual father and son banquet sponsored by the Men's Club of the Reformed Church of the Comforter and held at the church hall Tuesday evening. He pointed out that a necessity of victory was the elimination of the prejudice and false pride on the home front before such could be accomplished on the world battle fronts.

The speaker stated that those at home must search their heart, eliminate the jealousies and prejudices found there which are similar to those now rampant in the world and which Americans are fighting to crush, and then get into the fight with head, hand and heart.

The American love of a contest which has formed the foundations for past national and international successes was portrayed as being hidden under the actions of those who willfully exceeded the speed limit and violated other government regulations necessary for victory in the world conflict.

Father O'Brien further pointed out that the church today could occupy the position of the organization standing for right on the home front, but that the church was composed of individuals. If those individuals carried in their hearts the same hatreds as those which we are striving to crush on the battlefields, then the church was a "dead organization from which there could be no resurrection."

Approximately 120 fathers and sons attended the annual banquet which was presided over by Clarence Hyde as toastmaster.

Frank Elmendorf acted as song leader for the occasion, and Douglas Kennedy sang two tenor solos. The remainder of the program consisted as a greeting from the Men's Club by Robert Brown, president; a toast to the dads by Robert Hicks and a toast to the sons by L. P. Galt. Singing of the Star Spangled Banner and a salute to the flag in the nature of a tribute to the sons of the church who were now in service, completed the program.

Chain store and mail order sales for the first six months of this year averaged 18 per cent larger in dollar volume than in the same period of 1941, according to the Department of Commerce.

Flashes of Life Sketched in Brief

(By The Associated Press)

Finders Keepers

Cincinnati — David Mitchell, 29, a fugitive from the Lima State Hospital for the Insane, was captured recently with $6,190.

He first said he found the money in a house, then a second house, and a third.

The house owners claimed the money.

Judge Louis J. Schneider threw up his hands, said "the source of the money remains a mystery to this court," and awarded it to Mitchell.

The court labeled Mitchell's story "unworthy of belief," but ruled the others had established no claim.

Sound Sleeper

Kansas City — Thomas Smith, 55, sat on a downtown curb to rest—and fell asleep.

Awakened by a sharp pain in his left foot, he was taken to the hospital where examination revealed a fractured bone.

"I guess a car must have run over me," he speculated.

Preparedness

Chicago — Auctioneer Erwin F. Dygert reported he had little trouble in selling about 100 horses at a sale in the Dexter Park pavilion. Prices, however, were moderate, the top being about $230. Some who purchased horses also bought buggies, prices ranging from $10 to $300. Dygert said most of the buyers were rural residents, apparently fearful that gas rationing would create transportation problems.

Sad Reunion

Chicago — Joe Irzyk worked for a month as a mash cooker before the still was seized by federal alcohol tax agents.

When Chester Kosloa and John S. Esposito went into Federal Court for trial on charges of operating the still they saw Irzyk among government witnesses.

"What's he doing here?" they asked.

"He's a special agent for the alcohol tax unit."

Both entered pleas of guilty.

Stamps IN THE NEWS

By the AP Feature Service

Space was found in transatlantic mail for the July-September issue of the Philatelic Journal of Great Britain, which is noteworthy if for no other reason than its assurance that this present disagreeable phase of our history has to end sometime. For the Journal is in its 52nd volume and has weathered more wars than one. Engravings are understandably few, but the 74 pages are filled with the usual technical and general information. One article sounds a warning against wartime fakes engineered by double impressions and transfers.

New Zealand has issued three additional values of its "war print" which include the 2-shilling postage and revenue stamp pictured here, a 6d in red which shows a harvest scene, and a one-shilling in green which pictures a bird. The 2-shilling, portraying Capt. Cook at Poverty Bay, October 6, 1879, is in a gray-green. In this set, according to J. & H. Stolow, New York dealers, the color tones are out of the ordinary, as well as the line perforation of 13½:14.

The Free French have issued a set of 14 stamps, in franc and centimes values, for the tiny islands of St. Pierre and Miquelon, last of the French colonies in North America. The islands are located off the south coast of Newfoundland and are divided by a channel. All the stamps, as the 30 centimes green-black shown here, picture a sailing vessel which would appear to be a brigantine.

A cover received by this department from Argentina carries a new 15-centavo stamp from the South American republic, in addition to the 1-peso airmail. The 15-centavo is in a light blue and in an oval is a bull's head. Inscription within the oval is "Ganaderia," which is Spanish for the breeding of cattle. A new and companion stamp is a 15-c also in light blue, bearing a portrait of Martin Guemes, one of Argentina's heroes in its battle for independence in the days of San Martin. Guemes, born in 1785, died on the battlefield in 1821.

Hitler's birthday, April 20th, was again celebrated by issue of a new postage stamp, according to J. and H. Stolow, whose correspondents from a neutral country report that four additional stamps in native drawings came out of Bohemia-Moravia. The design is reported to be a portrait of Hitler in lecture stance. The stamps are not imported in this country.

mander in Chief has to rely on you for about 7,000,000 tons between now and January 1.

This years expected tonnage of steel is expected to be about 85,000,000 tons. Of this about 46,750,000 tons will be made from scrap.

The industry itself however contributes 60 per cent of the scrap. For instance about 30 per cent of every ingot of scrap which goes back into the furnace.

Production Will Speed

If you do better than the 17,000,000 tons, you will be directly speeding the steel production toward the military goal. You will have to do a little better to maintain even the average, because industry now is not able to furnish all the 60 per cent of scrap. Some of it goes abroad in Lend-Lease shipments.

An so that vague personality you have known all your lives merely as the junkman, now suddenly becomes one of the most vital production soldiers.

This is how it works. Your shovel, and Mr. Morgan's locomotive, go to a scrap yard. There are 6,500 of these scrap yards in the United States. There are 5,000 to 6,000 one-man operations in addition. And on top of that about 50,000 men who have been called merely peddlers. And then about 200,000 more who are the scrap yard workers, and it's a hard, skilled business.

This unknown army is waiting. Steel mills which normally have six weeks scrap on hand now have only two weeks. Don't be fooled by the apparent size of the auto graveyards. On February 1 last there were 1,500,000 cars in those graveyards—today just about 400,000.

And the auto graveyards situation is somewhat of a pity because the cars contain some 125 different special steels. They have furnished most of the steel to make airplane engines and the vital parts of the tanks, planes and guns.

Your shovel, and everybody's contribution, goes, usually in a gondola car, to one end of a scrap yard. Huge swinging magnets lift out the metal and pile it one, two stories high.

Experts sort and divide it into three classes. One is No. 1 heavy melting scrap. Acetylene torches and shears cut this class into pieces no more than five feet long, not more than 18 inches wide, and at least ¼ inch thick stuff. No chromium, nickel, vanadium or tungsten are included in this pile.

The second class is small, light pieces, not over three feet long nor more than 15 inches wide. Some of these go into electric furnaces to make the very high quality steels, such as for plane engines. Electric furnaces require from 90 per cent scrap upward, sometimes using scrap only.

Scrap Is Baled

Third is the baled scrap—smaller stuff, compressed by hydraulic machines into cubic bundles, 20 inches on a side, and averaging about 350 pounds each.

There is one lucky break. If the deliberate purpose of the scrap men had been to mine the American household, the location of the yards could not have been better chosen. The scrap mines are distributed according to density of population, mute testimony that for making steel, the people themselves are one of the great mine sources.

The size of the job which has bloomed since Pearl Harbor dwarfs the scrap sent to Japan, one of the now bitter regrets. Over the 10 years up to 1940, Japan took 11,600,000 tons of scrap. About two-thirds of what you, the American citizen, is asked to produce this year.

There is some reason to believe that at least until recently Japan had most of that scrap, holding it as a stock pile for war. Japan's rated annual steel-making capacity has been 7,200,000 tons. Italy's was 3,000,000, Germany's 24,700,000. A total of 34,900,000.

The Axis nations probably have raised these figures. Also they have a lot of occupied or dominated steel sources, raising the grand total to around 61,000,000 tons, estimated, annually.

American capacity soon will be 90,000,000 tons. England's rating has been 20,000,000 and Russia's 21,800,000. That more than doubles the Axis resources. Even so, your shovel, and your personal contributions as American citizens, make about 13 per cent now.

August Set New Record for Nation

Fewer Lives Are Lost, With Saving of 1,550 Due to Decrease in Amount of Driving

Chicago, Sept. 30 (AP)—Fewer lives were lost in traffic accidents in the United States last month than in any August on record, the National Safety Council reported today.

Fatalities dropped 40 per cent below the same month a year ago, and the total of 2,310 was lower than in any August as far back as 1926, the earliest year for which national monthly totals are available.

The council said the reduction represented a saving of 1,550 lives. It reported the downward trend was general throughout the country, and that for the first time not a single state reported an increase for August.

But the American motorist wasn't credited for the life-saving. Sidney J. Williams, director of the council's public safety division explained:

"The reduction in x x x deaths is, mathematically, exactly what it should be in terms of the decreased mileage now being driven. In other words, our surveys of accident experience throughout the country during the last few months show that while there has been a decided decrease in the amount of driving there has been no change in the quality of driving.

"The effect of lower rates of speed has been offset by such factors as the deterioration mechanically of automobiles, tires in progressively less safe condition, reduced personnel in traffic police forces and conscious or subconscious war jitters which distract and preoccupy both drivers and pedestrains."

The council reported the traffic toll for the first eight months of this year dropped 21 per cent from the same period of 1941. The figures were 19,150 deaths against 24,170 last year.

Motor vehicle deaths in the gas-rationed states were down 45 per cent in August," it said. "Not only were these reductions equalled and exceeded in other parts of the country, however but the North Atlantic region continued to have by far the smallest cumulative reduction in fatalities for the year."

Atlanta led cities of 250,000 or more population with cumulative reductions for the eight month period. Toledo, Los Angeles, Minneapolis and Columbus followed in that order, all with drops of 30 per cent or more. Atlanta's was 42 per cent.

Three large cities, Dallas, St. Paul and Birmingham, Ala., had perfect records for August. Mt. Vernon, N. Y., with a population of 67,400, was the largest city in the nation to have a perfect record for the first eight months.

Milwaukee, New York and Boston ranked one, two, three in the eight-month death rate listings for cities of 500,000 or more population.

A distressed mother.....or was it a father......phoned us and wanted to know; "How can I stop my daughter from wearing slacks?"

Here is one way: Have your daughter put on the slacks, come out in the back yard, and face the north. Stand several paces south of her with a candid camera and take her picture. Then, have the film developed......show her the picture.

They tell about a woman who was having throat trouble. Her husband took her to a specialist. Looking into her throat the specialist called her husband to look with him.

As the husband gazed into his wife's throat, the specialist said:

Husband—Yes, and how tired her throat looks!

Two lunatics were busy in a room hanging some pictures. One was endeavoring to drive a nail into the wall head first by hitting it on the point when, suddenly, he turned around to his friend and remarked:

First Lunatic—The point was made on the wrong end .

Second Lunatic—Why you're the one that's crazy......that nail was made for the opposite wall.

A young woman, while sprinkling the lawn this past summer, was visiting with a neighbor woman, a widow. Her husband, late in getting to work, rushed out of the house and up to his wife to kiss her goodbye. In his hurry and excitement incident to catching a street car, he kissed his wife, then smacked the neighbor woman.

Neighbor Woman—Did you see what your husband did?

Woman—He doesn't realize what he did as his mind was so absorbed in getting off to work.

That evening, when the man returned home from work, he apologized to the neighbor woman.

Neighbor Woman — So you want to spoil it, do you? That was the first kiss I have had in a long, long time.

Wife (to husband)—I didn't run after you when we were courting!

Husband—No. A trap doesn't run after a mouse! But it catches it just the same.

Millie—When we are married I shall expect to have at least three servants.

Willie—Darling! You shall have many, many more than that, but only one at a time.

Then there was the girl who joined a woman's military unit to escape from the kitchen and her job now is entirely in the kitchen.

Hulks Would Go As W.P.A. Project

Mead Suggests Wrecked Vessels Be Removed Along Waterfronts

Washington, Sept. 30 (AP)—Senator Mead (D.-N. Y.) said today he had recommended as a W. P. A. project the removal of unsightly wrecked schooners, barges and hulks found along the waterfronts in New York and other large maritime centers.

He predicted in a statement that removal of such debris would yield large quantities of scrap materials essential to the war effort and in addition would remove in some cases serious menaces to navigation, and fire hazards.

Mead said that during a tour of New York harbor recently he noted numerous old hulks, some beached, some partly submerged. Coast guard officials with whom he talked, Mead said, expressed concern that the abandoned vessels might be set afire accidentally or by saboteurs and cause serious damage in the harbor.

He made public a letter in which Rear Admiral R. R. Waesche, commandant of the coast guard, estimated there were from "thirty to fifty wrecks, mostly wooden, strewn along the shore waters of New York harbor with no one federal agency feeling that it is its responsibility to arrange for their removal or destruction, due to the absence of clear-cut legal jurisdiction."

Admiral Waesche said the hulks might be found in the vicinity of Edgewater, North Bergen, Kill Van Kull, Shooters Island, Arthur Kill and around the Brooklyn shore.

"Consisting principally of old schooners and barges," he said, "they are without names or known claimants to title, constituting not only an eyesore along the waterfront but in some cases a possible fire hazard.

"There is apparently a unanimity of opinion among the interested agencies at the port of New York that the removal or destruction of these vessels or hulks be undertaken."

Mead also made public a letter in which George H. Field, deputy W. P. A. commissioner, said he had requested the administrator in New York city to study the matter "and determine what assistance our organization might give."

Post-War Highway Program Goes on

Seven States, District of Columbia Survey Work Is Speeded

Washington, Sept. 30 (AP)—Engineering work on a $500,000,000 post-war highway program in California, Massachusetts, Mississippi, Missouri, New Jersey, New York, Oregon and District of Columbia is well under way Brig. Gen. Philip B. Fleming, federal works administrator, announced yesterday.

He said the engineering, extending from conception of the improvements through surveys and preparation of plans for contractors' bids, was going forward as a federal-state undertaking and was being financed by $10,000,000 authorized in the defense highway act of 1941. States will be required to match federal funds under the usual federal aid plan.

General Fleming made clear this program was only a part of improvements to be undertaken after the war. "At the present time," he added, "road-building, like all other construction activities of the Federal Works Agency, is of necessity confined to projects that are indispensable to the successful prosecution of the war.

Among projects listed by the F. W. A. as approved (costs undisclosed) were:

New York—Extension of Hutchinson River Parkway and Eastern Boulevard in the Bronx to a junction with the Boston Post Road and Merritt Parkway at the New York-Connecticut state line. This limited access route is to be known as the Pelham-Portchester Express Highway. Length 14 miles.

Improvement of a section of the Brooklyn-Queens connecting highway from Kent avenue to Morgan avenue in Brooklyn. This is a section of the limited access highway for through traffic from Flatbush avenue in Brooklyn to Astoria Boulevard and Grand Central Parkway near La Guardia Field in Queens. Length of project 2.2 miles. The improvement will serve as an alternate route for traffic between Brooklyn and points north and east of the metropolitan area via Triborough and Whitestone bridges.

Bennett Opinion Lets Loose Scrap For National Pile

Albany, N. Y., Sept. 30 (AP)—An opinion by Attorney General John J. Bennett, Jr., today speeded removal of tons of state-owned and antiquated cannon from armory lawns to the nation's scrap metal piles.

Answering a query from Adjutant General Ames T. Brown, Bennett held that State Budget Director J. Buckley Bryan is empowered to dispose of, by sale "or otherwise," any state property when the department head concerned certifies it is of no further use to his unit.

Brown, who said he asked the opinion so the state's contributions to the national scrap collection "would be made legally," ordered officers in control of New York's 87 armories to hasten surveys of ordnance that cannot be used or is without historical value.

Declining to estimate scrap thus available, pending reports of the surveys, Brown said armory custodians would be ordered to dump it as soon as possible on their community scrap piles.

Most of the material, used for exhibition purposes, was donated originally by the War Department without reservation as to its eventual disposition. Cannon of brass or bronze, relics of the Civil War or earlier conflicts, however, were sold by the War Department for a nominal sum on the condition they would not "be disposed of or mutilated by the recipients."

Bennett said a waiver of the condition by the federal government would be required to salvage such pieces.

He cited section 178 of the state finance law as a legal channel for disposition of most of the old guns, however, and added:

"I am of the opinion that the need of the nation for scrap metal in order to forge the implements of victory, in which national and local interests are inseparable, furnishes a proper occasion for giving property of no use to the state x x x".

A study, meanwhile, is underway to determine the historical value of a state capitol exhibit of 12 old-time cannon.

Kingston's Draft Quota in October Set at 250 Men

Kingston's draft board has been notified that its quota of men to be sent to an army induction center for physical examination for October will number 250 men.

The quota will be filled in two contingents who will leave Kingston early in October within a few days of each other.

To date the number of drafted and enlisted men in the armed service from Kingston is approximately 900, while in Kingston units of the National Guard now in service number between 125 and 150 men.

With the large number of men to be sent to an army induction center in October this will bring the number of Kingston men in the armed service to approximately 1,200 men.

Two Country Editors Give Wickard 'Swellest Idea' for U. S. Observance

By MAX HALL

Washington, Sept. 30 (Wide World)—The secretary of agriculture was having a busy day.

Buried in his schedule was a ten-minute appointment with two country editors from Mississippi, the little towns of Tylertown and Terry. He had no idea what they wanted to see him about.

They came in, talked for ten minutes and left.

Secretary Wickard burst from his office and said to an aide:

"That's the swellest idea that ever came down the pike. Why didn't somebody around this shop think of it? Why didn't I think of it?"

On the strength of the ten-minute interview, he made arrangements to go to Tylertown, Miss., (population—1,400) and make a speech.

That is how the "Food-for-Freedom Thanksgiving Harvest Program" won the official blessing of the Department of Agriculture. The movement, fast becoming nationwide, will be formally inaugurated on Saturday, October 3, when Wickard makes his Tylertown address. It will be broadcast on the National Farm and Home Hour.

The two Mississippians who laid the idea on the secreary's desk were 39-year-old, bespectacled Lester Williams, editor of the Tylertown Times, and George W. Godwin, editor of the Terry Headlight and president of the Mississippi Press Association.

They told Wickard they wanted to organize Thanksgiving harvest celebrations from coast to coast between October 4 and the middle of December—for two reasons:

1. To give full recognition to the farmers of America for their contribution to the war effort.

2. "To ask a grateful nation to join, as did their forefathers in 1621, in humble thanksgiving to God for the bountiful harvest that well be gathered this fall from the broad acres of free America."

Williams and Godwin are busy day and night, in Mississippi, pushing their program through state press associations. The press associations of Alabama and Louisiana were among the first to join. Weekly papers in rural communities all over the country will get out special editions.

It was a special edition of the Tylertown Times that really started the plan boiling in Lester Williams' head.

In September, 1941, the Department of Agriculture had begun its "Food-for-Freedom" program and set goals for food crops in the various states, even breaking the figures down into counties and going to the individual farmer and asking him how much of this or that crop he could grow. After Pearl Harbor these goals were boosted sharply upward.

Tylertown, 100 miles south of Jackson, Miss., and 100 miles north of New Orleans, is in Walthall county, which has no industry but agriculture. Mississippi as a whole is the most agricultural state in the Union, according to the Department of Agriculture, since 85 per cent of its annual income comes from farming.

Williams, who has been editor of the Times for 16 years and knows well the farmers who read his paper, issued a special "Food-for-Freedom" edition January 29. It was such a good job that the National Editorial Association awarded him its annual prize for the best special edition among weekly papers of the country.

Secretary Wickard saw it and wrote Williams a letter of commendation.

Williams planned another special edition for this fall. He was discussing with George Godwin how appropriate it would be for other Mississippi weeklies to do the same, when they began asking each other, "why not weeklies all over the country?"

They sat down enthusiastically and drew up an ambitious program. Then they wrote Wickard for an appointment.

They got ten minutes. It was enough.

Moscow, Sept. 30 (AP)—The Soviet radio said today a letter received in Moscow reported that Rumanian troops had massacred 25,000 Russians in Odessa, Axis-occupied Black Sea port. The victims were declared locked in barracks and blown up. The radio said the troops then poured oil on the wreckage and burned the bodies.

KEY COLLECTION

The National Key Collection Campaign now underway promises a flow of fighting metal, which is urgently needed by the Navy. Pasteboard boxes, labeled Key Kans, have been placed in public buildings, stores and other frequented places throughout the city and persons who have useless keys are asked to drop them in the "kans".

The number of useless keys to doors, desks, trunks, padlocks, etc., which have been kept in a corner of a drawer, the past utility of which has long been forgotten, must run into large numbers. These useless keys can now be given to Uncle Sam for ships, tanks and fighting machinery. Flat keys of the Yale and Corbin type are said to be nearly eighty percent nickel silver.

There is a key-hold your useless keys will fit. It is the Victory Key Kans. Drop yours in now.

CHAIN STORE BASEBALL

The triumph of the St. Louis Cardinals in the National League shows the value of the chain store system. Though the New York Yankees in the American League had already proved this, the fact had been obscured by their coming from New York. It seemed natural that the metropolis should have the richest owners and therefore the best team. This explanation ignored the failure, in recent years, of the New York Giants. Other teams, notably the Chicago Cubs, have had heavy pocket-books back of them, yet have not approached the record of either the Cardinals or Yankees. In the last ten years the Yankees have won six pennants, twice finished second, and once, by a bare margin, third. The Cardinals have won five pennants, finished second twice and third three times, in the last 16 years. No other club can match this.

The chain store system is what its name indicates. The major league team owns a series of minor league clubs, at least one for every class of professional ball. This means several places whence players can be drawn, and several clubs of varying degrees of skill with which to place a promising athlete for training. They thus have a constant supply of promising material. Other clubs, lacking these facilities, may be strong one year, weak for some years following. Connie Mack's Philadelphia Athletics, pennant-winners in 1931, had by 1935 gone to pieces so badly that they finished last, and have not been far from there any year since. This was because their supply of new stars depended on chance.

SNARLED UP

The worst obstacle to progess in the war may be the red tape. Able and energetic men are driven frantic by the way they get snarled up in it when they want to be doing something. Chairman Lou E. Holland of the Smaller War Plants Corporation has been telling a congressional committee how it goes.

This capable business man from Kansas City, heading a $150,000,000 outfit meant to help small business, says he discovered "some things he didn't anticipate."

He wanted his own personnel director, and picked a good man, but had to give him up because he was a lawyer, and lawyers serving in that capacity were forbidden.

Then he undertook to hire 300 top-notch mechanics but found that he couldn't have them because they were not on civil service rolls. He needed highly trained men to help train small business men in war goods manufacture, and wasn't even allowed to run newspaper ads to get them.

It really seems as if there should be somewhere, in the vast and complex Washington system, an occasional oasis of benevolent dictatorship, where practical patriots could break through the interference and get essential things done promptly.

BUY MORE WAR BONDS

There is a great deal of talk at this time concerning proposals for enforced purchasing of War Bonds. Some such plan as this may become inevitable under any circumstances. And it is certain to be adopted in the relatively near future unless the people substantially increase their voluntary purchasing of Bonds and Stamps.

The Treasury some time ago established a goal of $1,000,000,000 worth of Bond and Stamp sales monthly. That goal has not been reached. It must be reached and passed if the war is to be properly financed, and if excess purchasing power, the creator of inflation, is to be reduced.

The public has responded fairly well to these drives—but not well enough. In these days, when wages are at record levels and almost any man or woman can quickly obtain a good job, all of us can afford to take all or part of our change in Stamps when we stop in stores. All of us can afford to buy one or more Bonds each pay day. Certainly, giving up some luxuries is a mighty small price to pay to help the war effort along. The duty of every American is plain—to cut his personal expenditures severely, and to put the money into War Savings. Remember that the next time you go to a bank or to a retail store featuring Bonds and Stamps.

They say an army "travels on its stomach," and those boys in the Solomon Island jungles know all about it.

A good way not to win this war is for any economic bunch to try to get something out of it besides victory.

The Russians prove that block-by-block defense is the way to block Hitler.

MENTAL HYGIENE CLINICS

A few years ago the statement was made that at the present rate of increase in the number of mental cases in any and all communities, within fifty years it would mean that at least one half the population would require mental care. Naturally health departments everywhere are trying to prevent this condition by various means.

Today mental institutions by regular and special forms of treatment, by the help of visiting or resident specialists—throat, teeth, heart, lungs, and others — are able to send back to home and business about six in every ten patients admitted.

Where the greatest progress is being made, however, is the recognition of the "early" symptoms and signs of mental ailments by the family and general physician, and the sending of these early cases to a mental or psychiatric clinic.

If the average taxpayer stopped to think of what it costs to keep just one patient in a mental institution, he would gladly pay a few cents extra yearly to prevent it.

Dr. Victor H. Vogel of the United States Health Service, as recorded by Science Service states:

"It would not cost taxpayers a cent if their local health services added Mental Hygiene Clinics to their child health clinics and other services. Such clinics would prevent mental breakdowns and so reduce the number of patients cared for in mental hospitals. Mental illness is the most expensive kind because of its long duration. If only three people a year are saved from becoming public charges in a mental institution, that means enough money saved to support a Mental Hygiene Clinic for an entire year."

The saving of money is but the least of the benefits of a mental clinic. It cannot be compared with the saving of human life and happiness.

Mental hygiene clinics help people whose lives are threatened by other dangers too. A divorce can sometimes be prevented, a home kept intact, a suicide prevented, a nervous or neurotic patient saved from being an invalid for life. That is a gain to the whole community.

As it is known that mental illness makes up one half of all illness and disability, it can readily be seen what it means to a community to have a full time mental hygiene department in each state or province health department.

"AT CENTURY'S TURN"

By H. L. VAN DEUSEN

In the years at the turn of the century one of the best known men in Kingston was the late John E. Kraft, for many years active in Democratic politics. Mr. Kraft had served the city as mayor during 1890-91, and was widely known as a newspaper editor for a number of years.

I recall that on Tuesday evening, December 7, 1926, that Kingston Lodge, No. 10, F. & A. M., held a dual celebration observing Craftsmen's Night and the 50th anniversary of Mr. Kraft being raised a Master Mason in that lodge.

For years Mr. Kraft was active in Masonic affairs, and he was the author of an interesting history of Masonic activities in Kingston.

In honor of his 50th anniversary as a Mason, the lodge presented him with a Masonic ring that night.

It is also interesting to recall that on December 5, 1916, the Common Council named the new street between Emerick and Stephan streets, Hazel street, in honor of the daughter of Alderman George Schick of the Third Ward.

Alderman Schick served that ward as its representative in the council for several terms. He was one of the best known railroad men in Kingston, and was an engineer on the old Ulster & Delaware railroad for a number of years.

In November, 1916, work of erecting the huge tabernacle on Delaware avenue for the Peacock evangelistic campaign, was started. The campaign officially opened on December 31, of that year and continued for a period of six weeks.

At the close of the campaign the Board of Public Works took over the building and used it as a warehouse until it was torn down.

The Peacock campaign was sponsored by the Rondout Presbyterian Church, the Wurts Street Baptist Church and Trinity Methodist Church, and proved one of the most successful evangelistic campaigns ever held in the city.

The evangelist, the Rev. Luther Peacock, before he engaged in evangelistic campaigns of his own, was a member of the Rev. Billy Sunday's evangelistic party.

"Bill" McAuliffe was elected captain of the Kingston High School baseball team for 1917 season at a meeting of the team held on November 22, 1916. Captain McAuliffe, for many years, was one of the leading ball players in the city.

I also recall that the Kingston Taxpayers Association was first organized on November 23, 1916, in a meeting of interested citizens held in Measter's Hall on Broadway, near Henry street. For years one of the most active members of the association was Jay Terry, well known brick manufacturer.

Farmer Is Chief Hindrance to Bills Which Might Halt or Prevent Inflation

By DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington, Sept. 30—The nation has been led to believe that the farmer is the main obstacle to the enactment of legislation to prevent inflation. While certain farm bloc leaders have agitated for higher prices to the farmer, the record will show that the administration itself not only has brought about the biggest factor in inflation—increase in purchasing power—but it has reserved for itself under the pending bill the right to continue to inflate wages and payrolls.

Looking back over the record, the biggest single inflationary force in the present high costs of the government's war program is the 40-hour week. There never has been and there is not now any reason why a work-week longer than 40 hours cannot be worked, but the insistence of the administration that the taxpayers shall pay for time-and-a-half on all overtime has increased the payrolls of America to fantastic heights.

Now when a manpower shortage looms, not a single word has come from the administration indicating that it wants America to work a 48-hour week for the same hourly rate of pay as the 40-hour week. On the contrary, as the work week lengthens, the cost of the war program will be increased and the government will find itself searching for a larger and larger amount of revenue from a minority of the population so as to meet the staggering war costs.

The reason why the Farm Bloc senators and representatives are so resentful of the criticism levelled lately by the thick-and-thin supporters of the administration is that the impression has been spread that the farm groups are alone responsible for inflation by demanding 110 per cent of parity, when the truth is the administration has forced up the costs of the things the farmer has to buy and has put into distribution billions of dollars of purchasing power that is not being siphoned off by taxation.

If the administration is to permit special privilege to one group, it will find other groups demanding the same thing. The farmers, through their representatives, are pointing to the fact that unskilled laborers are getting from $80 to $100 a week, including overtime payments, on some government projects, and that this is happening in areas near farm districts so that the farmer is finding it increasingly difficult to get labor.

The administration has consistently promoted the idea of higher and higher payrolls during the war period. The war labor board has stimulated demands for increased wages and finally, through the formula in the "Little Steel" case, ordered a wage increase. There has not been a single instance of wage decrease since the war started, though, to be sure, some requests for increases have been denied.

Now the President has been given power by the House of Representatives to "correct gross inequities," but it is not probable, judging by the record that any cut in wages will be ordered. Certainly the President has consistently resisted all efforts to put America on a 48-hour week, with straight time instead of overtime for all work between 40 and 48 hours a week.

The men in the armed services do not get overtime pay for their sixth day's work or double time for the seventh, yet the administration, through its spokesmen, this week has been endeavoring to give the impression that to stop inflation is to back up the men at the front. There would be far more support for the administration's fight against the demands of the farm group if there were any sign that the large city populations, where the administration's principal political support comes from, would be treated just as firmly as the farmer.

From a political viewpoint, the administration can forfeit all of the farm states. In the 1940 election, as in the 1936 election, the President got enough votes from nine big cities plus the solid south, to elect him even though he had lost all the rest of the cities and the farm areas. The Labor vote dominated those cities.

The house bill delegates to the President the power to manipulate wages, but the administration insists that the farmer's income shall meet a fixed level irrespective of what happens to wage costs. The administration will win its fight against the Farm Bloc—and should win it—but this will not stop inflation if the executive agencies continue to promote inflation by increasing wages and by refusing to cut down the premium for work over 40 hours a week.

Washington In Wartime

By Jack Stinnett

Washington — The Capital in Wartime:

A few days ago, in the federal prison at Milan, Mich., a fifth columnist got what was coming to him—and he didn't like it.

He was a member of a religious sect opposed to war but this fellow carried things a little too far. He dodged the draft. He was caught, tried and sentenced to a term in the penitentiary. That apparently taught him nothing. He became a trouble-maker — the prison's No. 1 problem child. He rebelled at everything. He tried to incite the other prisoners to violence. He damned the U. S. A.

* * *

Milan also is the "domicile" of a group of Nazis. Because of the danger of riots, the Nazis had been isolated from the other prisoners. Prison officials, finally at wit's-end with their fifth columnist, came to this conclusion: "All right, if he's such a Nazi lover, we'll just let him live with them."

He had been there some time when James V. Bennett, director of federal bureau of prisons, made a recent inspection tour at Milan. He came into the ward where the Nazis were held. A haggard fellow stepped out of the group. In pitiful tones, he pleaded with Bennett. His wail went something like this: "Please, sir, get me out of here. I'll be good from now on. I can't stand being in with these dirty Germans."

He's back with the regulars now and at last report was a model prisoner.

* * *

Everything happens to Washington in wartime. The latest is "standsit" transportation. These are buses and trolleys with seats only 18 inches apart and at such height from the floor that you only bend your knees to plank down on the narrow ledge that is laughingly referred to as a seat.

The "standsitters" are a brainchild of the War Production Board. They increase the capacity of trolleys and buses by 20 persons.

Washington is taking them with good humor, for the most part. The most serious complaints come from fat people who can't wedge into the seats at all; shorties who can't reach them; and the bean poles who can't standsit without barking their shins.

* * *

A visiting Nebraskan tell me that if you really want to find out about William M. Jeffers, the new rubber czar, go to North Platte where he was born.

The town has a Jeffers street and a Jeffers Park. The little house where "Willie" Jeffers was born is a city shrine. A few years ago when it was threatened with demolition to make way for a new street, the city fathers had it moved and restored.

The only other North Platte hero who can match "Bill" Jeffers in eminence is one "Buffalo Bill" Cody.

New York Central Turns in 180,000 Tons of Scrap

Scrap metal amounting to 180,000 gross tons, mostly iron and steel, has been turned over to the government so far this year by the New York Central System to be distributed to designated war industry plants, according to F. E. Williamson, president of that railroad.

Mr. Williamson also made known that in addition to this heavy contribution to the nation's scrap pile, the New York Central had turned over to the government for military use 25,000 tons of used rail suitable for relaying as yard tracks at military camps and war industry plants.

Since half the metal in a battleship or tank is scrap, this tonnage would be sufficient for steel to build twelve 30,000-ton battleships, or a fleet of almost 13,000 tanks of the 28-ton "General Lee" type.

Emphasizing the importance of the railroads as a source of scrap metal, Mr. Williamson pointed out that 80 per cent of the new steel used on the railroad makes available for rescue an equal amount, either in the form of scrap or relayer rail.

The New York Central's accumulation of scrap is not limited to iron and steel, but includes 287,000 pounds of rubber recovered so far this year and such other strategically valuable war materials as aluminum, brass, lead copper, nickel alloy and manganese in substantial quantities. Even rope and burlap, so badly needed now that the Far East sources of these materials are closed, are represented in the New York Central scrap pile, with 34,450 pounds of rope and 49,900 pounds of bags and burlap so far this year.

"Heart Not In It," Declares Speaker at Comforter Banquet

Declaring that too many Americans are "in this war with their head and hand but not with their heart," the Rev. Raymond O'Brien of West Park, speaking before the annual father and son banquet sponsored by the Men's Club of the Reformed Church of the Comforter and held at the church hall Tuesday evening. He pointed out that a necessity of victory was the elimination of the prejudice and false pride on the home front before such could be accomplished on the world battle fronts.

The speaker stated that those at home must search their heart, eliminate the jealousies and prejudices found there which are similar to those now rampant in the world and which Americans are fighting to crush, and then get into the fight with head, hand and heart.

The American love of a contest which has formed the foundations for past national and international successes was portrayed as being hidden under the actions of those who willfully exceeded the speed limit and violated other government regulations necessary for victory in the world conflict.

Father O'Brien further pointed out that the church today could occupy the position of the organization standing for right on the home front, but that the church was composed of individuals. If those individuals carried in their hearts the same hatreds as those which we are striving to crush on the battlefields, then the church was a "dead organization from which there could be no resurrection."

Approximately 120 fathers and sons attended the annual banquet which was presided over by Clarence Hyde as toastmaster.

Frank Elmendorf acted as song leader for the occasion, and Douglas Kennedy sang two tenor solos. The remainder of the program consisted as a greeting from the Men's Club by Robert Brown, president; a toast to the dads by Robert Hicks and a toast to the sons by L. P. Galt. Singing of the Star Spangled Banner and a salute to the flag in the nature of a tribute to the sons of the church who were now in service, completed the program.

Will Sing, Speak At Local Churches

This week-end Andrew Branche, known among the youth of the Reformed churches as "Smiling Brother Andrew," will sing and speak in the Reformed Churches of Kingston and vicinity. He will be the guest of the Rev. George Berens of the Port Ewen Reformed Church.

Mr. Branche is a senior student at the New Brunswick Theological Seminary at New Brunswick, N. J., and upon his graduation this coming May plans to return to his home community at Brewton, Ala., as pastor and director of religious education of the Reformed Church school there.

During the past two years Mr. Branche has won the good-will of hundreds of young people at the summer conferences of the Reformed Church groups throughout this country. He is especially gifted in singing the "spirituals" of his people.

Mr. Branche's visit to this area will commence Saturday evening, when he will meet with church leaders at an informal dinner at the Port Ewen Reformed Church hall. He will speak at that time on the work of the Reformed Church Mission School at Brewton. He will also sing some of the "spirituals." This meeting will commence as a supper at 6:30 o'clock. Sunday morning Mr. Branche will appear in one or two of the Kingston Reformed Churches. Then at 7:30 in the evening he will again appear at a special youth service at the Port Ewen Reformed Church, sponsored by the young people of that church, at which he will sing and give a devotional address. The public is invited to all these meetings.

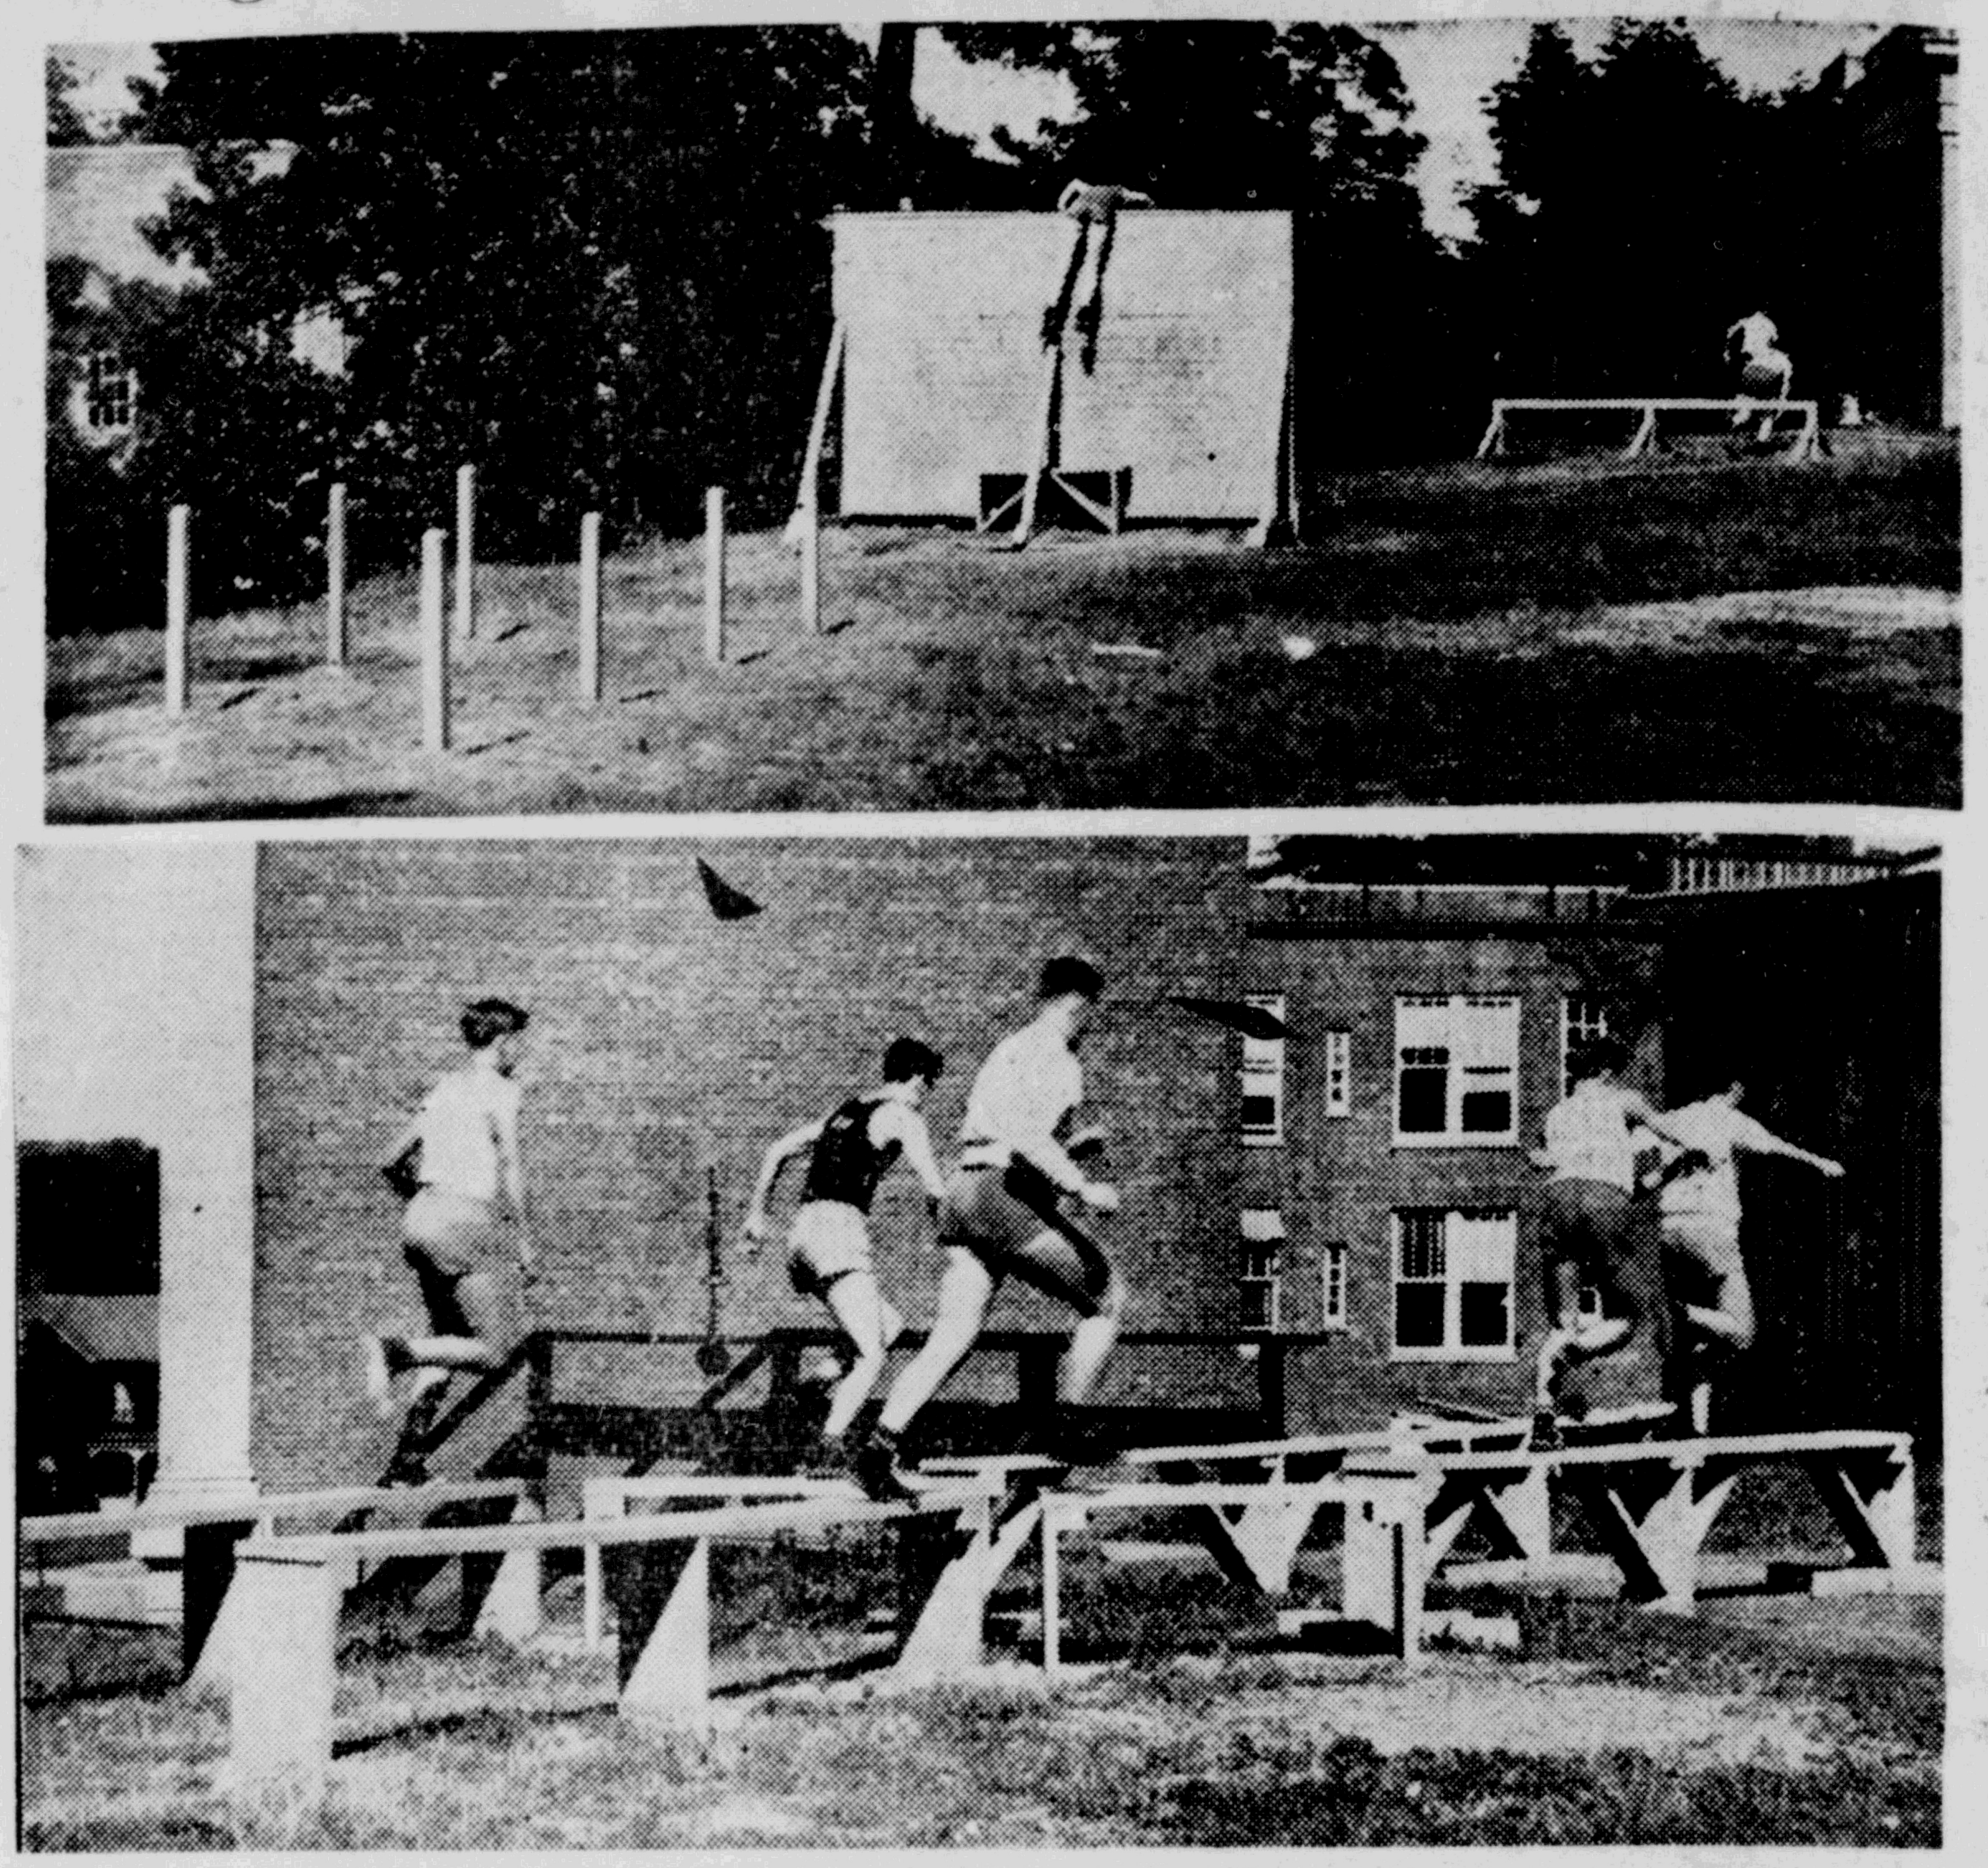
Ranger Course at Kingston High School



Freeman Photos

Under the supervision of G. Warren Kias, physical director at Kingston High School, boy students of the school are now being put through the Ranger Course which is the same as is used in the various United States Army camps. The course is built about on the same lines as the famous commandos.

All boys in the school who are listed for gym periods throughout the week are taking this physical building course and although speed records aren't attempted, Warren Kias announced that army men can do the course in 17 seconds and that the record at Kingston High School is about 30 seconds. The total length of this course is 100 yards and Kingston High School is the first school in this district to have such a Ranger Course.

Tuesday afternoon The Freeman photographer visited the boys in the rear of the school and witnessed a class going through the course. First of all they go over hurdles and then scale a four-foot fence. The boys then go through a maze after which they must scale an eight-foot wall. Following this comes an 18 inch fence representing barbed wire fences which forces the youths to crawl under. A brook or eight-foot ditch is next on the program which the boys must jump over. The youths then scamper across a balance or running board and finish the course by going over an embankment and jumping into a sand pit, representing a trench in the battlefield.

Mr. Kias was enthused over the course and the boys who were going through their paces.

Wiltwyck Golfers Elect Directors

Five Whose Terms Expire Are Re-Chosen

The annual meeting of the stockholders of Wiltwyck Golf Club was held at the club house on Hurley avenue last evening at which time five directors whose terms of office expire were re-elected for a term of three years. The directors re-named are: Henry J. Wieber, William E. Finch, Maurice Davenport, Alfred D. Ronder and Dwight McEntee. John T. R. Hall was elected a director to fill out the unexpired term of the late William P. Glass.

A high tribute to the late William P. Glass, who was a director and secretary of the club from the date of organization, was paid by Herbert E. Thomas and a committee was appointed to draft suitable resolutions to be entered in the minutes and sent to Mrs. Glass.

The annual report of the treasurer showed that while the club had been operated this season on a greatly reduced budget all bills contracted during the year were paid and that the balance on hand would pay expenses until the course was closed for the season.

The greens committee reported that the course was in the finest condition since its opening with greens and fairways given excellent care during the season. Tom Danaher the pro who has managed the course was commended for his excellent results obtained on a reduced budget and Ray LeFever, chairman of the greens committee was also thanked for the work done by his committee.

Van Deusen Elected

Herb Van Deusen was re-elected president of the Central Major League last night, as the city's top-flight tenpin circuit voted to operate under a handicap system for the 1942-43 season. The meeting was held at the Central Recreation alleys. The league captains, by a unanimous vote, decided to affiliate with the American Bowling Congress through the Kingston Bowling Association.

Other officers named were Lew Hymes, vice president; and Gil Sampson, secretary-treasurer. The teams and captains in the circuit this year are Joneses, Al Kieffer; Hymes, Lew Hymes; Doblers, Harold Broskie; Grunenwalds, Gil Sampson; Adirondacks, Johnny Ferraro; Van Deusens, Herb Van Deusen; Sangis, Johnny "Red" Sangi and Steins, Al Heisman.

A 910 ceiling was placed on the league with an 80-per cent handicap system in effect. The league also will feature an innovation in the matter of starting time, getting under way at 9 o'clock every Thursday night. The 80 per cent handicap also is the highest under which any local bowling league has ever operated.

First matches in the league scheduled Thursday night, October 1 at 9 o'clock at the Central Recs are as follows:

Thursday, October 1

9 p. m.

1-2 Sangis vs. Grunenwalds
3-4 Van Deusens vs. Steins

Central Recs Elect

The Central Recreation Bowling League, one of the oldest intermediate loops in the city, elected Walter May president for the 1942-43 season at the reorganizational meeting held last night at the Central Rec alleys. The league, formed with seven teams but eight squads, is expected to be ready for the opening matches next Tuesday night.

Captains of the league voted unanimously to affiliate with the American Bowling Congress and posted entry fees with Secretary Charles Tiano of the Kingston Bowling Association. The K. B. A. secretary was named to that post in the Central Rec loop, with Lou Bruhn and Joe Messinger being chosen as vice president and treasurer respectively.

Teams already in the fold are the Terwilligers, E. Terwilliger, captain; Dawkins, George Dawkins; Hercules, Joe Dulin; Bull Market, Steve Fassbender; Ulsters, Phil Masters; Crystals, Lou Bruhn; Gov. Clinton Hotel, no captain has been named as yet. There is an opening for an 875 team for the eighth spot in the league. Any team of 875 or under desiring to join the Central Rec League is requested to communicate with Secretary Tiano, telephone 803.

First night schedule.

Tuesday, October 6

1-2 Ulsters vs. Crystals
3-4 Hercules vs. Terwilligers
5-6 Bulls vs. Dawkins
7-8 Gov. Clinton vs. New Team

Teams Join A. B. C.

The Central Recreation and Central Major Leagues last night voted unanimously to affiliate with the American Bowling Congress through the Kingston Bowling Association.

Action by these two loops brought to five the number of circuits now pledged to stay in sanctioned bowling regardless of the outcome of Monday night's A. B. C. election.

Leagues totalling 40 teams that have notified Secretary Charles Tiano of the K. B. A. that they will affiliate with the A. B. C. for the 1942-43 season are Kingston Booster League (8); Catholic Bowling League (10); Central Major League (8); Central Recreations (6) or (8), and Independent League (8).

Deadline for notification of affiliation with the A. B. C. is Friday night at midnight. Leagues that have not paid their dues by that time will not be eligible to cast votes in the elections Monday night.

K. B. A. Will Meet

The new elections for the Kingston Bowling Association will be held Monday, October 5, at the Y. M. C. A. at 8 o'clock. These elections are being held in place of last May's elections which were declared invalid on a technicality. A compromise slate has been named but the various captains may also make nominations from the floor.

In order to make the captains elegible to vote, the respective leagues must join the A. B. C. no later than Friday night at midnight. In the absence of complete reorganization, the officials of the leagues will furnish affidavits that they will affiliate with the A. B. C. regardless of the outcome of the elections.

Captains of all teams in the various leagues that are eligible to vote will cast ballots.

Ruffing Is Named to Face Cooper in Series Opener

Experts Believe Classic Will Be Played to the Limit; Cardinals Held in Esteem

By GAYLE TALBOT

St. Louis, Sept. 30 (AP)—It was Mort Cooper, peerless 22-game winner of the St. Louis Cardinals, against Rufus (the Red) Ruffing, 37-year-old right-hander of the New York Yankees, when the champions of the National League and the Champions of the American League, respectively tied into each other in the opening game of the 1942 World Series today at Sportsman's Park.

A crowd of just under 35,000, the utmost capacity of the park, was sure to be on hand when the two league champions inaugurated the annual playoff at 2:30 P. M. (EWT). Every reserved chair was sold more than a week ago, and speculators were getting handsome premiums for the seats that had come into their posession—up to $50 for choice locations.

Bitter Series Opined

In the opinion of old stagers, it promised to develop into one of the bitterest World Series in history, probably to be fought right down to the last gasp. Nobody would be surprised if it went the limit of seven games. While most of the experts thought the Yankees would win eventually, few of them predicted it would be an easy victory.

The Cardinals have too much class for that. Those who have been following Billy Southworth's bravos as they made their sensational stretch drive to beat out the Brooklyn Dodgers declare unanimously that they are capable of beating anybody—including the Yankees. Those who have seen the most of the Cards lately are highest in praise of the wild-running kids, and are the ones who like their chances the best against the resplendent Yankees. Which might, or might not, be significent.

There was, to tell the truth, an agreeable surprise in St. Louis last night when the word arrived, in advance of the Yankees themselves, that Ruffing had been named by Manager Joe McCarthy to hurl the first game for the Yanks. The American League champs did not pull into town until nearly dark—too late for a workout—but the word that Ruffing was McCarthy's choice arrived by telegraph hours earlier.

No Baseball Talk

There still was no outward sign that St. Louis knew a World Series was about to take place. In public places the patrons listened to the high drone of planes and said: "That one isn't made here. That isn't a training plane. That's a thousand-horsepower job." There was no talk about baseball.

The second series game scheduled to be played here tomorrow, and after a day's lapse they were due to continue the battle at the Yankee Stadium on Saturday, Sunday and Monday.

Grid Attendance Drops Due to War And Defense Work

A.P. Survey Shows Big Decrease at College Games; Reasons Are Given by Writers

New York, Sept. 30 (AP)—Fans working—or marching—to beat the Hitler-Mussolini-Hirohito combination, none of whom probably ever saw a football game, are the reasons for the drop in gridiron attendance, an Associated Press survey shows today.

A majority of the larger colleges opened their schedules last Saturday with, in some cases, a terrific falling off in the turnout of the faithful.

Only 17,087 saw Michigan open its season, the smallest crowd in 11 years. Ohio State manhandled Fort Knox before 24,555, the smallest first-game house since 1933 and only 22,000 sat in on the trimming Minnesota gave Pittsburgh. That's a total of 63,642.

A year ago on the opening Saturday, Michigan, Ohio State and Minnesota participated in a trio of games that lured 160,000 through the gates.

Southern California's attendance Saturday was 10,000 below that of a year ago; Harvard lost to the North Carolina pre-flight team with 12,000 watching, and only 3,000 Floridans cheered the 'Gators and Randolph Macon in contrast to the 8,000 of 1941.

Charles Johnson, sports editor of the Minneapolis Star-Journal and the Boswell of the Golden Gophers, replied with "the kick of winning has been taken out of football by the bigger battle to win. The young people who made up a good share of the fans either are in the service or wondering when they will go."

On the west coast, Paul Zimmerman, Los Angeles Times sports editor, wired that "it isn't that the general caliber of good football is missing. Rather, it is an apparent feeling on the part of the fan that he had better reduce participation in this collegiate madness."

Along with these mental restraints, conservation of tires and gasoline and the Saturday afternoon of work contribute to the attendance decline.

Balls Auctioned To Bond Buyers At Grid Clashes

Washington, D. C., Sept. 30 — A plan whereby the footballs used in the nation's collegiate grid games will be auctioned off to the spectator at each game who pledges to buy the most War Savings Bonds was presented to college athletic directors by the Treasury Department today.

The plan was suggested to the Treasury by Columbia University, of New York city, which reported that it intends to put the plan into action at its home games this season. Under the plan, the auction will be held between the halves of each game. The ball, autographed by the opposing captains, will be presented after the game to the spectator who makes the highest Bond bid during the auction.

Yankee Boss Sees Big Series Ahead; Picks No Winner

St. Louis Fans Still After Ducats; Sam Breadon Regrets Swamped Situation

By CHARLES DUNKLEY

St. Louis, Sept. 30 (AP)—Joseph Vincent McCarthy, kindly 56-year-old manager of the New York Yankees, leads his players into the World Series against the rip-snorting St. Louis Cardinals with supreme confidence — and a memory.

Last team to conquer the Yankees in a World Series was the Cardinals of 1926, who had an outfielder named Billy Southworth, now the 49-year-old manager of the current Cardinals.

Since then, the Yankees have won eight world championships, defeating every team in the National League with the exception of Boston and the Phils. They have registered 34 triumphs, taking four series in four straight.

If McCarthy is letting the memory bother him, he's keeping strictly to himself.

McCarthy Praises Cards

Yet McCarthy expresses admiration for the Cardinals, declaring they must be good to have won 106 games and lasted through such an amazing stretch drive. He had a word of commendation for Mort Cooper, the 22-game winner who starts today against the Yanks, but he declined to be drawn into any prediction as to the series outcome.

"We'll be in there fighting from the first pitch," McCarthy said. "That's all I care to say. I hope the best team wins and I hope it will be us."

World Series tension and excitement is nothing new to McCarthy. He's won six and has been on both sides of the fence, having piloted the 1929 Chicago Cubs, who lost four out of five to the Philadelphia Athletics. When the Bronx bombers smothered the Brooklyn Dodgers last year it was the seventh championship club managed by McCarthy—the sixth to a world's championship.

St. Louis fans loyal to the Cardinals are furious over their inability to get Word Series tickets except through scalpers. They are bombarding newspapers with letters and telephone calls. Explaining the Cardinals' policy, Sam Breadon, president of the club, said approximately 17,000 seats were available to the general public.

Breadon said more than enough applications were received the first day the sale opened to swamp workers. Names meant nothing, therefore, in the final selections. Clerks just grabbed handfulls of letters and filled the applications until all grandstand seats were gone.

"There are 22,879 seats in the grandstand and 3,168 in the boxes," Breadon explained. "Of this total, 2,000 go to baseball officials—Commissioner Landis, club owners and members of the Baseball Writers' Association. Another 500 are used for the overflow press box. Others go to holders of season books.

"I sincerely regret this situation, but we couldn't help it. We were swamped," Breadon added.

Twenty-eight thousand pavilion seats at $3.45 each and 3,900 bleacher seats at $1.15 each went on sale at 7 a. m. today. Hundreds stood in line all night to buy them.

Scalpers Doing Business

Scalpers are doing a land-office business with $5.75 grandstand seats bringing from $10 to $20 each. The demand exceeds the supply. It's the greatest thing for scalpers in 15 years.

Listen, for instance, to Herman Leon of Philadelphia, who describes himself as one of the "leading brokers in the east." Herman ambled out from behind his rickety wooden counter in a vacant store, assumed a studious air and opened up:

"You can quote me as saying," he began, "that in all my 20 years experience the demand is the best in 15 years. You can quote me further that there are too many people wanting tickets and not enough of 'em willing to turn 'em loose at our prices . . . My telephone rings all the time . . . Guys from Arizona . . . Guys from Chicago. . . All over . . . Such a demand . . . And we ain't got enough to sell . . ."

Herman waved his arms despairingly.

Probably the fans have concluded this may be the last series for the duration and they're going to see it regardless of cost.

Wildcats Happy to Forget Defeat by Iowa Seahawks

Northwestern Team Plays Texas Longhorns This Week; Lynn Waldorf Lauds Seahawks

Evanston, Ill., Sept. 30 (AP)—Before Northwestern opened its grid season last Saturday against the potent Iowa naval pre-flight school, a friend suggested to Wildcat Coach Lynn Waldorf:

"Why don't you regard the Seahawk game as just an exhibition—and start your season the next week against Texas?"

While the Northwestern Gridders have every reason to be proud of their performances in their 20-12 losing battle against the Seahawks, they'd be just as happy to forget the game and count this Saturday's clash with the Longhorns as the official 1942 opener.

For the Wildcats have every reason to believe they will be a standout team in the coming big ten campaign. Along with Michigan and Wisconsin, Northwestern rates as a major threat to Minnesota's title defense chances. It's experiences, a great line, and Otto Graham that makes the Wildcats tough.

19 Lettermen Lost

The Northwestern campus make quite a to-do about the fact 19 lettermen are gone from last year's Wildcat squad that missed the big ten championship by eight points—a 14 to 7 loss to Michigan and an 8 to 7 defeat to Minnesota made the big difference.

But—17 "N" winners are back, and none are more feared on western conference opposition fields than the artful Graham, passer, runner and kicker de luxe, and his end men, Bob Motl and Bud Hasse. With a Pinchy offensive force like that returning, Waldorf's job for 1942 was simplified considerably.

Then too line Coach Burt Ingwerson came up with his usual powerhouse. With Motl and Hasse on the flanks and Capt. Nick Burke back at guard, he fitted Warren Karlstad into the left tackle berth vacated by the graduated Alf Bauman, and sent hard-working Ray Vincent into the other tackle spot. He utilized a stocky 204 pounder, Alex Kanter, as Burke's running mate at left guard and popped Junior Hal Hudson in at center. It worked fine.

This war is proving tough on able-bodied persons who have been making a career of relief.

A distressed mother.....or was it a father......phoned us and wanted to know: "How can I stop my daughter from wearing slacks?"

Here is one way: Have your daughter put on the slacks, come out in the back yard, and face the north. Stand several paces south of her with a candid camera and take her picture. Then, have the film developed......show her the picture.

They tell about a woman who was having throat trouble. Her husband took her to a specialist. Looking into her throat the specialist called her husband to look with him.

As the husband gazed into his wife's throat, the specialist said:

Doctor—Do you see that?

Husband—Yes, and how tired her throat looks!

Two lunatics were busy in a room hanging some pictures. One was endeavoring to drive a nail into the wall head first by hitting it on the point when, suddenly, he turned around to his friend and remarked:

First Lunatic—The man who made these nails was crazy.

Second Lunatic—Why?

First Lunatic—The point was made on the wrong end .

Second Lunatic—Why you're the one that's crazy.:....that nail was made for the opposite wall.

A young woman, while sprinkling the lawn this past summer, was visiting with a neighbor woman, a widow. Her husband, late in getting to work, rushed out of the house and up to his wife to kiss her goodbye. In his hurry and excitement incident to catching a street car, he kissed his wife, then smacked the neighbor woman.

Neighbor Woman—Did you see what your husband did?

Woman—He doesn't realize what he did as his mind was so absorbed in getting off to work.

That evening, when the man returned home from work, he apologized to the neighbor woman.

Neighbor Woman — So you want to spoil it, do you? That was the first kiss I have had in a long, long time.

Wife (to husband)—I didn't run after you when we were courting!

Husband—No. A trap doesn't run after a mouse! But it catches it just the same.

Millie—When we are married I shall expect to have at least three servants.

Willie—Darling! You shall have many, many more than that, but only one at a time.

Then there was the girl who joined a woman's military unit to escape from the kitchen and her job now is entirely in the kitchen.

Professor—What do you consider the greatest achievment of the Roman's?

Student—Speaking Latin.

Mrs. Albina Orlowski gave a monologue, in costume. Plans are being completed for a turkey supper to be served Saturday evening, in connection with the annual Grange Fair.

Maryland Ahead In Using Schools To Aid War Effort

Baltimore, Sept. 30 (AP)—When Selective Service Director Lewis B. Hershey said school children might have to help out in the war effort, Maryland's reply was: "We saw this one coming."

"Yes sir," said John J. Seidel, assistant state superintendent of schools, "we saw this one coming and made our plans accordingly. So successful has been the experiment that we intend to expand it and make the plan available to many more students in other parts of the state."

General Hershey said in New York yesterday that school children might be called upon to work four or five hours a day to reinforce the "fighting and producing groups."

More than 200 Maryland high school students in five selected towns already are working four to five hours a day at gainful occupations, under the supervision of their teachers and as part of the curriculum.

The five schools chosen for the experiment—Cambridge, Frederick, Annapolis, Silver Spring and Bethesda—work it this way:

The students who elect or volunteer to work attend classes as usual from 9 a. m. to 12:30 p. m. and at 1 p. m. report to their place of employment and work until 5 or 5:30 p. m. Teachers visit the employer once a week, help the student and make necessary adjustments.

The pupils are given the prevailing pay for beginners and receive high school credit for their work so that they may be given diplomas just as though they spent all their time in the classrooms.

"Employment has been found for them in drug stores, groceries, clothing stores, specialty shops and they also serve as filling station attendants, garage workers and part-time stenographers," Seidel said.

He explained that the department planned to expand the program about December 1 both to take in more students and to extend coverage into other occupations.

They are selling over 12,000,000 War Savings Stamps every week, for a total of well over a million dollars every seven days."

We wish that it were possible to write each of you in person to tell you of our pride in the work of your splendid patriotic son.

The minimum rates are $6 for a six-day week with time and one-half for the seventh day.

According to the fire department the fire was started on the outside of the building, and was discovered by two boys who were riding in an automobile on the Strand and saw the flames. They promptly pulled an alarm.

John Bull Is New Person and as Fit As Trained Athlete

from the strain like a runner who is poised for a tardy-starting gun.

That is a condition which can only be cured when the Allies are ready for all-out offensive action.

In their hearts, the British people already have started the big drive to finish off Hitler. They are as eager as anyone else to slash through any possible delays.

You begin to understand this when you know that here in Britain every man, woman and child is a soldier. They've only one idea—to beat the Boche They've reached the point where their money and other possessions of price don't mean much anymore. Their all-consuming purpose is to hang, draw and quarter Adolf Hitler.

I was wafted into the midst of this new Britain on the wings of a transatlantic clipper. The censor rightly would frown if I tried to describe this trip but it can be said the devious route brought us across in a remarkably few hours of actual flying time.

It was a wonderful journey, thanks to the Yankee master pilot and his six assistants, who handled the ship.

As we were set down in this streamlined fashion in the midst of a streamlined Britain, I couldn't help a backward glance at my first arrival here in January, 1916, during the last World War.

Like Fat, Old Dowager

Back in those primitive days we had wallowed across the Atlantic in a funny little tub of 6,000 tons. She had staggered, groaned and belched like a fat Dowager in her cups until finally after many days we were tossed ashore more dead than alive.

Then, as now, the Allied cause was fairly battered.

General Sir Douglas Haig, who later was to become Field Marshal Lord Haig, had just replaced General Sir John French as British Commander in Chief in France. The Gallipoli campaign just had ended in festering disaster. A few months later the Kaiser was to inaugurate the submarine campaign which all but cost the Allies the war.

Then, as now, the people of Britain were grimly determined to see it through.

But there was a vast difference in the circumstances. The war was far away—just as it is to us in America today.

True, there was some enemy bombing of Britain and casualties rolled back from the front. Still—fighting was overseas. Soldiers were sent away like crusaders of old to foreign lands—and civilians did not get the feel of it.

In this day of blitzkriegs and 8,000-pound bombs and huge clippers that span oceans, however, the war is to be carried into every town and home. The individual doesn't go to war but the war comes to him.

That's what has happened to Britain and brought about a great change.

Civilians are in the battleline.

British Will Be Ready

The sum of all this is that when the Allied high command feels the time has arrived to open that fiercely debated second front, the British people will be ready to jump to the guns.

So far as the troops are concerned, they long have been fretting to see action.

In the meantime, Britons carry on with their nourishing but weight-reducing rations and all the other rigors of war which make anything approaching a normal existence impossible. Social intercourses has suffered a vast blackout, and blackout here means blackout.

I felt my way across the street in the dark last night the distance of a few yards from the entrance to my hotel and had the utmost difficulty reaching my destination. A taxi narrowly missed me as it crept past—just an intensified bit of blackness that swept by like a silent bird of the night.

Foreigners are put under the microscope by military police who keep tabs on them constantly.

The authorities are efficient and hard, as needs must be in war time, for there are many spies about, but officialdom isn't without humor.

When I registered with the police yesterday and they found I had lived here previously they dug out my old identity book dating back to 1919. The officer who was handling my case opened the book to the photo of a handsome young feller with coal black hair and asked me :"That wouldn't be you, would it, sir?"

And he grinned as he said it, darn him.

Last Day of September Is Coldest for Month

September was ushered out today in the coldest temperature so far experienced this season, with thermometers in certain sections of the city recording as low as 28 degrees, while the city hall thermometer registered a low of 35 degrees at 6 o'clock this morning.

For the second night in succession a heavy white frost covered the ground and the roofs of the buildings in Kingston while fall temperatures prevailed throughout the morning.

Tuesday was an exceptionally cool day in the city with the city hall thermometer recording a low of 36 degrees at 6 o'clock that morning and a high of 57 degrees that afternoon. Toward night the mercury began dropping. This morning it had touched the lowest point so far recorded this month.

20 Boys, Teachers Killed in Raid

Rescue Workers Still Probe in School Wreckage

London, Sept. 20 (AP).—Twenty boys and two teachers including Miss Charlotte Marshall, 27-year-old head mistress, were known dead and rescue workers toiled on today in the belief others might be buried in the debris of a boys' school in southern England which was wrecked yesterday by a heavy German bomb.

Eighteen other boys were reported missing as the rescue work proceeded.

The blast injured 34 boys. The victims were among about 70 students doing arithmetic and composition work in the wood and brick building when the Nazi plane attacked.

Boys who escaped told police the bomb which destroyed the school fell into the fireplace and did not explode immediately.

Miss Marshall shouted to the boys to run. Those who did so escaped, but the teacher stayed behind.

Rationing Board Mails Out Renewals

The office force in the Kingston War Price and Rationing Board is now busy preparing for the mail approximately 2,500 renewals which are to be mailed to all those holding "B" and "C" gas ration books. The present books expire October 22.

It was stated today that it was expected that these renewals would be in the mail within the next few days, which would afford plenty of time for those receiving them to fill them out and return them to the rationing board.

When the renewals are filled out and returned the board will go over each renewal, and the one mailing it will receive a notice through the mail when to call at the board office for his new book. Adoption of this new system it is believed will assist materially in having the new ration books ready for use on October 23.

Nelson Asks Efforts

Washington, Sept. 30 (AP)—Men and women in the nation's war industries went to work today exhorted by Production Chief Donald M. Nelson to give "unheard of efforts" to increase a rate of output which already surpasses that of Axis Europe. While reporting yesterday that munitions production last month was eight per cent higher than in July, Nelson asserted the showing was "nothing to brag about" because "the plain fact of the matter is that production lagged in August about 14 per cent behind the first-of-the-month forecasts."

Both Parties Take 'Victory' Claims For Fall Elections

G.O.P. Says House Control Assured; Democrat Retention Forecast With Gains

Washington, Sept. 30 (AP) — A Republican prediction that the party would win control of the House in the November elections was countered today by a Democratic spokesman who expressed the belief that Democrats not only would retain their majority but might increase it slightly.

The Republican speaker was Frank E. Gannett, assistant chairman of the Republican national committee, who told a party dinner last night that the country was in an "awful mess" from what he described as the bungling of the war effort and new presidential threats to undermine the Constitution, and added:

"If the voters in November will elect a Republican House, as I believe they will, then we can check the New Deal follies, get rid of the inefficiency in our government, prosecute the war more vigorously and hasten that happy day when our boys will come back home."

Rep. Jed Johnson of Oklahoma, head of the Speakers' Bureau of the Democratic Congressional Campaign Committee, meanwhile told reporters at the capitol:

"We're hopeful of getting back at least as many members as we now have. Perhaps we can pick up a seat or two.

"I don't think there's the remotest possibility of a turnover which would give the Republicans a majority in the House."

(Present membership of the House is: Democrats 256; Republicans 165, with minority parties and vacancies making up the remainder of the 435. A clear majority is 218. On the present basis, the Republicans would have to capture more than 50 Democrats' seats and not lose any of their own to organize the next House.)

Johnson said there were about 40 Democrats and as many Republican incumbents who won in 1940 by a margin of 500 votes or less.

"Those seats are all in the doubtful territory," he said. "We may lose some, but we hope to gain at least as many as we lose. We probably will lose a few along the eastern seaboard, but make them up in the west."

The Oklahoman said he believed it likely his party would gain as many as five additional members from California, whose present delegations is now made up of nine Democrats and nine Republicans with two vacant seats formerly held by Democrats.

Gannett, addressing 20 members of the G. O. P. National Executive Committee and Republican members of the Senate and House, declared the public was losing confidence in the management of the war, he said it was the fault of the "higher-ups on the home front," not the men in uniform. He demanded that the "failures be thrown out" and men of ability and experience put in their places.

Urging his party to demand a "centralized or unified" command for the armed forces, Gannett said the Army and Navy were still jealous of each other and the top men in each branch were not giving adequate recognition to air power.

He said the President's threat to act to control prices and wages if Congress failed to do so was a "piece of official impertinence" which displayed a willingness to "usurp the law-making function."

Gannett, publisher of a Rochester, N. Y., newspaper, said freedom of the press also was being threatened and that important news was being "held back needlessly."

"I maintain that to win this war, we must keep the people informed and thus strengthen their morale," he declared, adding that for a long time there had been "a deliberate plan by the administration to smear, weaken and destroy our newspapers because they have dared to criticise New Dealism."

"The radio," he continued, "is under control because it is licensed. Freedom of speech over the air is being increasingly restricted. The next step is to control the press.

"The pending suit against the Asociated Press has this objective. If the A.P. can be made a public utility then there will be removed the last barrier in the way of putting all wire service under some government commission. Then government control tightens and freedom of the press perishes.

"Already, I am sorry to say, it is fast disappearing under the pretext that war demands control."

Hulks Would Go As W.P.A. Project

Mead Suggests Wrecked Vessels Be Removed Along Waterfronts

Washington, Sept. 30 (AP)—Senator Mead (D.-N. Y.) said today he had recommended as a W. P. A. project the removal of unsightly wrecked schooners, barges and hulks found along the waterfronts in New York and other large maritime centers.

He predicted in a statement that removal of such debris would yield large quantities of scrap materials essential to the war effort and in addition would remove in some cases serious menaces to navigation, and fire hazards.

Mead said that during a tour of New York harbor recently he noted numerous old hulks, some beached, some partly submerged. Coast guard officials with whom he talked, Mead said, expressed concern that the abandoned vessels might be set afire accidentally or by saboteurs and cause serious damage in the harbor.

He made public a letter in which Rear Admiral R. R. Waesche, commandant of the coast guard, estimated there were from "thirty to fifty wrecks, mostly wooden, strewn along the shore waters of New York harbor with no one federal agency feeling that it is its responsibility to arrange for their removal or destruction, due to the absence of clear-cut legal jurisdiction."

Admiral Waesche said the hulks might be found in the vicinity of Edgewater, North Bergen, Kill Van Kull, Shooters Island, Arthur Kill and around the Brooklyn shore.

"Consisting principally of old schooners and barges," he said, "they are without names or known claimants to title, constituting not only an eyesore along the waterfront but in some cases a possible fire hazard.

"There is apparently a unanimity of opinion among the interested agencies at the port of New York that the removal or destruction of these vessels or hulks be undertaken."

Mead also made public a letter in which George H. Field, deputy W. P. A. commissioner, said he had requested the administrator in New York city to study the matter "and determine what assistance our organization might give."

Post-War Highway Program Goes on

Seven States, District of Columbia Survey Work Is Speeded

Washington, Sept. 30 (AP)—Engineering work on a $500,000,000 post-war highway program in California, Massachusetts, Mississippi, Missouri, New Jersey, New York, Oregon and District of Columbia is well under way Brig. Gen. Philip B. Fleming, federal works administrator, announced yesterday.

He said the engineering, extending from conception of the improvements through surveys and preparation of plans for contractors' bids, was going forward as a federal-state undertaking and was being financed by $10,000,000 authorized in the defense highway act of 1941. States will be required to match federal funds under the usual federal aid plan.

General Fleming made clear this program was only a part of improvements to be undertaken after the war. "At the present time," he added, "road-building, like all other construction activities of the Federal Works Agency, is of necessity confined to projects that are indispensable to the successful prosecution of the war.

Among projects listed by the F. W. A. as approved (costs undisclosed) were:

New York—Extension of Hutchinson River Parkway and Eastern Boulevard in the Bronx to a junction with the Boston Post Road and Merritt Parkway at the New York-Connecticut state line. This limited access route is to be known as the Pelham-Portchester Express Highway. Length 14 miles.

Improvement of a section of the Brooklyn-Queens connecting highway from Kent avenue to Morgan avenue in Brooklyn. This is a section of the limited access highway for through traffic from Flatbush avenue in Brooklyn to Astoria Boulevard and Grand Central Parkway near La Guardia Field in Queens. Length of project 2.2 miles. The improvement will serve as an alternate route for traffic between Brooklyn and points north and east of the metropolitan area via Triborough and Whitestone bridges.

Bennett Opinion Lets Loose Scrap For National Pile

Albany, N. Y., Sept. 30 (AP)—An opinion by Attorney General John J. Bennett, Jr., today speeded removal of tons of state-owned and antiquated cannon from armory lawns to the nation's scrap metal piles.

Answering a query from Adjutant General Ames T. Brown, Bennett held that State Budget Director J. Buckley Bryan is empowered to dispose of, by sale "or otherwise," any state property when the department head concerned certifies it is of no further use to his unit.

Brown, who said he asked the opinion so the state's contributions to the national scrap collection "would be made legally," ordered officers in control of New York's 87 armories to hasten surveys of ordnance that cannot be used or is without historical value.

Declining to estimate scrap thus available, pending reports of the surveys, Brown said armory custodians would be ordered to dump it as soon as possible on their community scrap piles.

Most of the material, used for exhibition purposes, was donated originally by the War Department without reservation as to its eventual disposition. Cannon of brass or bronze, relics of the Civil War or earlier conflicts, however, were sold by the War Department for a nominal sum on the condition they would not "be disposed of or mutilated by the recipients."

Bennett said a waiver of the condition by the federal government would be required to salvage such pieces.

He cited section 178 of the state finance law as a legal channel for disposition of most of the old guns, however, and added:

"I am of the opinion that the need of the nation for scrap metal in order to forge the implements of victory, in which national and local interests are inseparable, furnishes a proper occasion for giving property of no use to the state x x x".

A study, meanwhile, is underway to determine the historical value of a state capitol exhibit of 12 old-time cannon.

Kingston's Draft Quota in October Set at 250 Men

Kingston's draft board has been notified that its quota of men to be sent to an army induction center for physical examination for October will number 250 men.

The quota will be filled in two contingents who will leave Kingston early in October within a few days of each other.

To date the number of drafted and enlisted men in the armed service from Kingston is approximately 900, while in Kingston units of the National Guard now in service number between 125 and 150 men.

With the large number of men to be sent to an army induction center in October this will bring the number of Kingston men in the armed service to approximately 1,200 men.

Two Country Editors Give Wickard 'Swellest Idea' for U. S. Observance

By MAX HALL

Washington, Sept. 30 (Wide World)—The secretary of agriculture was having a busy day.

Buried in his schedule was a ten-minute appointment with two country editors from Mississippi, the little towns of Tylertown and Terry. He had no idea what they wanted to see him about.

They came in, talked for ten minutes and left.

Secretary Wickard burst from his office and said to an aide:

"That's the swellest idea that ever came down the pike. Why didn't somebody around this shop think of it? Why didn't I think of it?"

On the strength of the ten-minute interview, he made arrangements to go to Tylertown, Miss., (population—1,400) and make a speech.

That is how the "Food-for-Freedom Thanksgiving Harvest Program" won the official blessing of the Department of Agriculture. The movement, fast becoming nationwide, will be formally inaugurated on Saturday, October 3, when Wickard makes his Tylertown address. It will be broadcast on the National Farm and Home Hour.

The two Mississippians who laid the idea on the secreary's desk were 39-year-old, bespectacled Lester Williams, editor of the Tylertown Times, and George W. Godwin, editor of the Terry Headlight and president of the Mississippi Press Association.

They told Wickard they wanted to organize Thanksgiving harvest celebrations from coast to coast between October 4 and the middle of December—for two reasons:

1. To give full recognition to the farmers of America for their contribution to the war effort.

2. "To ask a grateful nation to join, as did their forefathers in 1621, in humble thanksgiving to God for the bountiful harvest that well be gathered this fall from the broad acres of free America."

Williams and Godwin are busy day and night, in Mississippi, pushing their program through state press associations. The press associations of Alabama and Louisiana were among the first to join. Weekly papers in rural communities all over the country will get out special editions.

It was a special edition of the Tylertown Times that really started the plan boiling in Lester Williams' head.

In September, 1941, the Department of Agriculture had begun its "Food-for-Freedom" program and set goals for food crops in the various states, even breaking the figures down into counties and going to the individual farmer and asking him how much of this or that crop he could grow. After Pearl Harbor these goals were boosted sharply upward.

Tylertown, 100 miles south of Jackson, Miss., and 100 miles north of New Orleans, is in Walthall county, which has no industry but agriculture. Mississippi as a whole is the most agricultural state in the Union, according to the Department of Agriculture, since 85 per cent of its annual income comes from farming.

Williams, who has been editor of the Times for 16 years and knows well the farmers who read his paper, issued a special "Food-for-Freedom" edition January 29. It was such a good job that the National Editorial Association awarded him its annual prize for the best special edition among weekly papers of the country.

Secretary Wickard saw it and wrote Williams a letter of commendation.

Williams planned another special edition for this fall. He was discussing with George Godwin how appropriate it would be for other Mississippi weeklies to do the same, when they began asking each other, "why not weeklies all over the country?"

They sat down enthusiastically and drew up an ambitious program. Then they wrote Wickard for an appointment.

They got ten minutes. It was enough.

25,000 Russians Massacred

Moscow, Sept. 30 (AP)—The Soviet radio said today a letter received in Moscow reported that Rumanian troops had massacred 25,000 Russians in Odessa, Axis-occupied Black Sea port. The victims were declared locked in barracks and blown up. The radio said the troops then poured oil on the wreckage and burned the bodies.

New York Central Turns in 180,000 Tons of Scrap

Scrap metal amounting to 180,000 gross tons, mostly iron and steel, has been turned over to the government so far this year by the New York Central System to be distributed to designated war industry plants, according to F. E. Williamson, president of that railroad.

Mr. Williamson also made known that in addition to this heavy contribution to the nation's scrap pile, the New York Central had turned over to the government for military use 25,000 tons of used rail suitable for relaying as yard tracks at military camps and war industry plants.

Since half the metal in a battleship or tank is scrap, this tonnage would be sufficient for steel to build twelve 30,000-ton battleships, or a fleet of almost 13,000 tanks of the 28-ton "General Lee" type.

Emphasizing the importance of the railroads as a source of scrap metal, Mr. Williamson pointed out that 80 per cent of the new steel used on the railroad makes available for rescue an equal amount, either in the form of scrap or relayer rail.

The New York Central's accumulation of scrap is not limited to iron and steel, but includes 287,000 pounds of rubber recovered so far this year and such other strategically valuable war materials as aluminum, brass, lead copper, nickel alloy and manganese in substantial quantities. Even rope and burlap, so badly needed now that the Far East sources of these materials are closed, are represented in the New York Central scrap pile, with 34,450 pounds of rope and 49,900 pounds of bags and burlap so far this year.

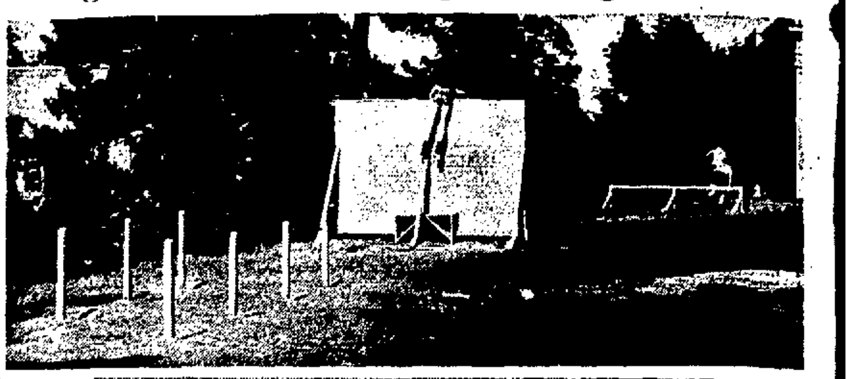
Ranger Course at Kingston High School



Freeman Photos

Under the supervision of G. Warren Kias, physical director at Kingston High School, boy students of the school are now being put through the Ranger Course which is the same as is used in the various United States Army camps. The course is built about on the same lines as the famous commandos.

All boys in the school who are listed for gym periods throughout the week are taking this physical building course and although speed records aren't attempted, Warren Kias announced that army men can do the course in 17 seconds and that the record at Kingston High School is about 30 seconds. The total length of this course is 100 yards and Kingston High School is the first school in this district to have such a Ranger Course.

Tuesday afternoon The Freeman photographer visited the boys in the rear of the school and witnessed a class going through the course. First of all they go over hurdles and then scale a four-foot fence. The boys then go through a maze after which they must scale an eight-foot wall. Following this comes an 18 inch fence representing barbed wire fences which forces the youths to crawl under. A brook or eight-foot ditch is next on the program which the boys must jump over. The youths then scamper across a balance or running board and finish the course by going over an embankment and jumping into a sand pit, representing a trench in the battlefield.

Mr. Kias was enthused over the course and the boys who were going through their paces.

Wiltwyck Golfers Elect Directors

Five Whose Terms Expire Are Re-Chosen

The annual meeting of the stockholders of Wiltwyck Golf Club was held at the club house on Hurley avenue last evening at which time five directors whose terms of office expire were re-elected for a term of three years. The directors re-named are: Henry J. Wieber, William E. Finch, Maurice Davenport, Alfred D. Ronder and Dwight McEntee. John T. R. Hall was elected a director to fill out the unexpired term of the late William P. Glass.

A high tribute to the late William P. Glass, who was a director and secretary of the club from the date of organization, was paid by Herbert E. Thomas and a committee was appointed to draft suitable resolutions to be entered in the minutes and sent to Mrs. Glass.

The annual report of the treasurer showed that while the club had been operated this season on a greatly reduced budget all bills contracted during the year were paid and that the balance on hand would pay expenses until the course was closed for the season.

The greens committee reported that the course was in the finest condition since its opening with greens and fairways given excellent care during the season. Tom Danaher the pro who has managed the course was commended for his excellent results obtained on a reduced budget and Ray Le-Fever, chairman of the greens committee was also thanked for the work done by his committee.

Van Deusen Elected

Herb Van Deusen was re-elected president of the Central Major League last night, as the city's top-flight tenpin circuit voted to operate under a handicap system for the 1942-43 season. The meeting was held at the Central Recreation alleys. The league captains, by a unanimous vote, decided to affiliate with the American Bowling Congress through the Kingston Bowling Association.

Other officers named were Lew Hymes, vice president; and Gil Sampson, secretary-treasurer. The teams and captains in the circuit this year are Joneses, Al Kieffer; Hymes, Lew Hymes; Doblers, Harold Broskie; Grunenwalds, Gil Sampson; Adirondacks, Johnny Ferraro; Van Deusens, Herb Van Deusen; Sangis, Johnny "Red" Sangi and Steins, Al Heisman.

A 910 ceiling was placed on the league with an 80-per cent handicap system in effect. The league also will feature an innovation in the matter of starting time, getting under way at 9 o'clock every Thursday night. The 80 per cent handicap also is the highest under which any local bowling league has ever operated.

First matches in the league scheduled Thursday night, October 1 at 9 o'clock at the Central Recs are as follows:

Thursday, October 1
9 p. m.

1-2 Sangis vs. Grunenwalds
3-4 Van Deusens vs. Steins
5-6 Adirondacks vs. Hymes
7-8 Joneses vs. Broskies

Central Recs Elect

The Central Recreation Bowling League, one of the oldest intermediate loops in the city, elected Walter May president, for the 1942-43 season at the reorganizational meeting held last night at the Central Rec alleys. The league, formed with seven teams but eight squads, is expected to be ready for the opening matches next Tuesday night.

Captains of the league voted unanimously to affiliate with the American Bowling Congress and posted entry fees with Secretary Charles Tiano of the Kingston Bowling Association. The K. B. A. secretary was named to that post in the Central Rec loop, with Lou Bruhn and Joe Messinger being chosen as vice president and treasurer respectively.

Teams already in the fold are the Terwilligers, E. Terwilliger, captain; Dawkins, George Dawkins; Hercules, Joe Dulin; Bull Market, Steve Fassbender; Ulsters, Phil Masters; Crystals, Lou Bruhn; Gov. Clinton Hotel, no captain has been named as yet. There is an opening for an 875 team for the eighth spot in the league. Any team of 875 or under desiring to join the Central Rec League is requested to communicate with Secretary Tiano, telephone 803.

First night schedule.

Tuesday, October 6

1-2 Ulsters vs. Crystals
3-4 Hercules vs. Terwilligers
5-6 Bulls vs. Dawkins
7-8 Gov. Clinton vs. New Team

Teams Join A. B. C.

The Central Recreation and Central Major Leagues last night voted unanimously to affiliate with the American Bowling Congress through the Kingston Bowling Association.

Action by these two loops brought to five the number of circuits now pledged to stay in sanctioned bowling regardless of the outcome of Monday night's A. B. C. election.

Leagues totalling 40 teams that have notified Secretary Charles Tiano of the K. B. A. that they will affiliate with the A. B. C. for the 1942-43 season are Kingston Booster League (8); Catholic Bowling League (10); Central Major League (8); Central Recreations (6) or (8), and Independent League (8).

Deadline for notification of affiliation with the A. B. C. is Friday night at midnight. Leagues that have not paid their dues by that time will not be eligible to cast votes in the elections Monday night.

K. B. A. Will Meet

The new elections for the Kingston Bowling Association will be held Monday, October 5, at the Y. M. C. A. at 8 o'clock. These elections are being held in place of last May's elections which were declared invalid on a technicality. A compromise slate has been named but the various captains may also make nominations from the floor.

In order to make the captains elegible to vote, the respective leagues must join the A. B. C. no later than Friday night at midnight. In the absence of complete reorganization, the officials of the leagues will furnish affidavits that they will affiliate with the A. B. C. regardless of the outcome of the elections.

Captains of all teams in the various leagues that are eligible to vote will cast ballots.

Ruffing Is Named to Face Cooper in Series Opener

Experts Believe Classic Will Be Played to the Limit; Cardinals Held in Esteem

By GAYLE TALBOT

St. Louis, Sept. 30 (AP)—It was Mort Cooper, peerless 22-game winner of the St. Louis Cardinals, against Rufus (the Red) Ruffing, 37-year-old right-hander of the New York Yankees, when the champions of the National League and the Champions of the American League, respectively tied into each other in the opening game of the 1942 World Series today at Sportsman's Park.

A crowd of just under 35,000, the utmost capacity of the park, was sure to be on hand when the two league champions inaugurated the annual playoff at 2:30 P. M. (EWT). Every reserved chair was sold more than a week ago, and speculators were getting handsome premiums for the seats that had come into their posession—up to $50 for choice locations.

Bitter Series Opined

In the opinion of old stagers, it promised to develop into one of the bitterest World Series in history, probably to be fought right down to the last gasp. Nobody would be surprised if it went the limit of seven games. While most of the experts thought the Yankees would win eventually, few of them predicted it would be an easy victory.

The Cardinals have too much class for that. Those who have been following Billy Southworth's bravos as they made their sensational stretch drive to beat out the Brooklyn Dodgers declare unanimously that they are capable of beating anybody—including the Yankees. Those who have seen the most of the Cards lately are highest in praise of the wild-running kids, and are the ones who like their chances the best against the resplendent Yankees. Which might, or might not, be significent.

There was, to tell the truth, an agreeable surprise in St. Louis last night when the word arrived, in advance of the Yankees themselves, that Ruffing had been named by Manager Joe McCarthy to hurl the first game for the Yanks. The American League champs did not pull into town until nearly dark—too late for a workout—but the word that Ruffing was McCarthy's choice arrived by telegraph hours earlier.

No Baseball Talk

There still was no outward sign that St. Louis knew a World Series was about to take place. In public places the patrons listened to the high drone of planes and said: "That one isn't made here. That isn't a training plane. That's a thousand-horsepower job." There was no talk about baseball.

The second series game scheduled to be played here tomorrow, and after a day's lapse they were due to continue the battle at the Yankee Stadium on Saturday, Sunday and Monday.

Grid Attendance Drops Due to War And Defense Work

A.P. Survey Shows Big Decrease at College Games; Reasons Are Given by Writers

New York, Sept. 30 (AP)—Fans working—or marching—to beat the Hitler-Mussolini-Hirohito combination, none of whom probably ever saw a football game, are the reasons for the drop in gridiron attendance, an Associated Press survey shows today.

A majority of the larger colleges opened their schedules last Saturday with, in some cases, a terrific falling off in the turnout of the faithful.

Only 17,087 saw Michigan open its season, the smallest crowd in 11 years. Ohio State manhandled Fort Knox before 24,555, the smallest first-game house since 1933 and only 22,000 sat in on the trimming Minnesota gave Pittsburgh. That's a total of 63,642.

A year ago on the opening Saturday, Michigan, Ohio State and Minnesota participated in a trio of games that lured 160,000 through the gates.

Southern California's attendance Saturday was 10,000 below that of a year ago; Harvard lost to the North Carolina pre-flight team with 12,000 watching, and only 3,000 Floridans cheered the 'Gators and Randolph Macon in contrast to the 8,000 of 1941.

Charles Johnson, sports editor of the Minneapolis Star-Journal and the Boswell of the Golden Gophers, replied with "the kick of winning has been taken out of football by the bigger battle to win. The young people who made up a good share of the fans either are in the service or wondering when they will go."

On the west coast, Paul Zimmerman, Los Angeles Times sports editor, wired that "it isn't that the general caliber of good football is missing. Rather, it is an apparent feeling on the part of the fan that he had better reduce participation in this collegiate madness."

Along with these mental restraints, conservation of tires and gasoline and the Saturday afternoon of work contribute to the attendance decline.

Balls Auctioned To Bond Buyers At Grid Clashes

Washington, D. C., Sept. 30 —A plan whereby the footballs used in the nation's collegiate grid games will be auctioned off to the spectator at each game who pledges to buy the most War Savings Bonds was presented to college athletic directors by the Treasury Department today.

The plan was suggested to the Treasury by Columbia University, of New York city, which reported that it intends to put the plan into action at its home games this season. Under the plan, the auction will be held between the halves of each game. The ball, autographed by the opposing captains, will be presented after the game to the spectator who makes the highest Bond bid during the auction.

Wildcats Happy to Forget Defeat by Iowa Seahawks

Northwestern Team Plays Texas Longhorns This Week; Lynn Waldorf Lauds Seahawks

Evanston, Ill., Sept. 30 (AP)—Before Northwestern opened its grid season last Saturday against the potent Iowa naval pre-flight school, a friend suggested to Wildcat Coach Lynn Waldorf:

"Why don't you regard the Seahawk game as just an exhibition—and start your season the next week against Texas?"

While the Northwestern Gridders have every reason to be proud of their performances in their [illegible] losing battle against the Seahawks, they'd be just as happy to forget the game and count this Saturday's clash with the Longhorns as the official 1942 opener.

For the Wildcats have every reason to believe they will be a standout team in the coming big ten campaign. Along with Michigan and Wisconsin, Northwestern rates as a major threat to Minnesota's title defense chances. It's experience, a great line, and Otto Graham that makes the Wildcats tough.

15 Lettermen Lost

The Northwestern campus makes quite a to-do about the fact 15 lettermen are gone from last year's Wildcat squad that missed the big ten championship by eight points—a 14 to 7 loss to Michigan and an 8 to 7 defeat to Minnesota made the big difference.

But—17 "N" winners are back, and none are more feared on western conference opposition fields than the artful Graham, passer, runner and kicker de luxe, and his end men, Bob Motl and Bud Hasse. With a punchy offensive force like that returning, Waldorf's job for 1942 was simplified considerably.

Then too line Coach Burt Ingwersen came up with his usual powerhouse. With Motl and Hasse on the flanks and Capt. Nick Burke back at guard, he fitted Warren Karlstad into the left tackle berth vacated by the graduated Alf Bauman, and went hard-working Ray Vincent into the other tackle spot. He utilized a stocky 204 pounder, Alex Kapter, as Burke's running mate at left guard and popped Junior Bud Hudson in at center. It worked fine.

Yankee Boss Sees Big Series Ahead; Picks No Winner

St. Louis Fans Still After Ducats; Sam Breadon Regrets Swamped Situation

By CHARLES DUNKLEY

St. Louis, Sept. 30 (AP)—Joseph Vincent McCarthy, kindly 56-year-old manager of the New York Yankees, leads his players into the World Series against the rip-snorting St. Louis Cardinals with supreme confidence — and a memory.

Last team to conquer the Yankees in a World Series was the Cardinals of 1926, who had an outfielder named Billy Southworth, now the 49-year-old manager of the current Cardinals.

Since then, the Yankees have won eight world championships, defeating every team in the National League with the exception of Boston and the Phils. They have registered 34 triumphs, taking four series in four straight.

If McCarthy is letting the memory bother him, he's keeping strictly to himself.

McCarthy Praises Cards

Yet McCarthy expresses admiration for the Cardinals, declaring they must be good to have won 106 games and lasted through such an amazing stretch drive. He had a word of commendation for Mort Cooper, the 22-game winner who starts today against the Yanks, but he declined to be drawn into any prediction as to the series outcome.

"We'll be in there fighting from the first pitch." McCarthy said. "That's all I care to say. I hope the best team wins and I hope it will be us."

World Series tension and excitement is nothing new to McCarthy. He's won six and has been on both sides of the fence, having piloted the 1929 Chicago Cubs, who lost four out of five to the Philadelphia Athletics. When the Bronx bombers smothered the Brooklyn Dodgers last year it was the seventh championship club managed by McCarthy—the sixth to a world's championship.

St. Louis fans loyal to the Cardinals are furious over their inability to get Word Series tickets except through scalpers. They are bombarding newspapers with letters and telephone calls. Explaining the Cardinals' policy, Sam Breadon, president of the club, said approximately 17,000 seats were available to the general public.

Breadon said more than enough applications were received the first day the sale opened to swamp workers. Names meant nothing, therefore, in the final selections. Clerks just grabbed handfulls of letters and filled the applications until all grandstand seats were gone.

"There are 22,879 seats in the grandstand and 3,168 in the boxes," Breadon explained. "Of this total, 2,000 go to baseball officials—Commissioner Landis, club owners and members of the Baseball Writers' Association. Another 500 are used for the overflow press box. Others go to holders of season books.

"I sincerely regret this situation, but we couldn't help it. We were swamped." Breadon added.

Twenty-eight thousand pavilion seats at $3.45 each and 3,900 bleacher seats at $1.15 each went on sale at 7 a. m. today. Hundreds stood in line all night to buy them.

Scalpers Doing Business

Scalpers are doing a land-office business with $5.75 grandstand seats bringing from $10 to $20 each. The demand exceeds the supply. It's the greatest thing for scalpers in 15 years.

Listen, for instance, to Herman Leon of Philadelphia, who describes himself as one of the "leading brokers in the east." Herman ambled out from behind his rickety wooden counter in a vacant store, assumed a studious air and opened up:

"You can quote me as saying," he began, "that in all my 20 years experience the demand is the best in 15 years. You can quote me further that there are too many people wanting tickets and not enough of 'em willing to turn 'em loose at our prices . . . My telephone rings all the time . . . Guys from Arizona . . . Guys from Chicago. . . . All over . . . Such a demand . . . And we ain't got enough to sell . . ."

Herman waved his arms despairingly.

Probably the fans have concluded this may be the last series for the duration and they're going to see it regardless of cost.

Maryland Ahead In Using Schools To Aid War Effort

Baltimore, Sept. 30 (AP)—When Selective Service Director Lewis B. Hershey said school children might have to help out in the war effort, Maryland's reply was: "We saw this one coming."

"Yes sir," said John J. Seidel, assistant state superintendent of schools, "we saw this one coming and made our plans accordingly. So successful has been the experiment that we intend to expand it and make the plan available to many more students in other parts of the state."

General Hershey said in New York yesterday that school children might be called upon to work four or five hours a day to reinforce the "fighting and producing groups."

More than 200 Maryland high school students in five selected towns already are working four to five hours a day at gainful occupations, under the supervision of their teachers and as part of the curriculum.

The five schools chosen for the experiment—Cambridge, Frederick, Annapolis, Silver Spring and Bethesda—work it this way:

The students who elect or volunteer to work attend classes as usual from 9 a. m. to 12:30 p. m. and at 1 p. m. report to their place of employment and work until 5 or 5:30 p. m. Teachers visit the employer once a week, help the student and make necessary adjustments.

The pupils are given the prevailing pay for beginners and receive high school credit for their work so that they may be given diplomas just as though they spent all their time in the classrooms.

"Employment has been found for them in drug stores, groceries, clothing stores, specialty shops and they also serve as filling station attendants, garage workers and part-time stenographers," Seidel said.

He explained that the department planned to expand the program about December 1 both to take in more students and to extend coverage into other occupations.

They are selling over 12,000,000 War Savings Stamps every week, for a total of well over a million dollars every seven days."

Area Hotels Among Wage Hour Violators

Albany, N. Y., Sept. 30 (AP).—Wartime boom wages "have not as yet discovered the highways and byways of New York resort hotels," Industrial Commissioner Frieda S. Miller said today in announcing 644 hotels were found to be violating the hotel minimum wage order this season.

A survey of 2,341 resorts between mid-July and Labor Day, Miss Miller asserted, resulted in collection of $7,525 for restitution of minimum wages to 1,743 women and minor males, 1,236 of them in Greene, Sullivan, Ulster and Delaware counties. The minimum rates are $6 for a six-day week with time and one-half for the seventh day.

According to the report of the accident filed by Miss Fogarty with the police department she was proceeding over Wall street at a slow rate of speed and did not see Mrs. Hatfield, who was crossing the street, until it was too late to avoid striking her. Miss Fogarty brought her car almost to a stop and swerved to one side.

Mrs. Hatfield was conveyed to the hospital in one of the police radio cars in charge of Officers George Bowers and Grover Haffay.

Gill Building Fire Is Being Investigated

Fire, of supposed incendiary origin, did slight damage to the building of David Gill, Jr., Inc., at 222 East Strand, Tuesday night, when the fire was discovered by two boys who turned in an alarm from Box 2241. Fire Chief Joseph L. Murphy was continuing his investigation of the fire today.

According to the fire department the fire was started on the outside of the building, and was discovered by two boys who were riding in an automobile on the Strand and saw the flames. They promptly pulled an alarm.

Quick response of Union Hose Co. and other fire department units kept the loss down and the damage slight to the building.

John Bull Is New Person and as Fit As Trained Athlete

from the strain like a runner who is poised for a tardy-starting gun.

That is a condition which can only be cured when the Allies are ready for all-out offensive action.

In their hearts, the British people already have started the big drive to finish off Hitler. They are as eager as anyone else to slash through any possible delays.

You begin to understand this when you know that here in Britain every man, woman and child is a soldier. They've only one idea—to beat the Boche They've reached the point where their money and other possessions of price don't mean much anymore. Their all-consuming purpose is to hang, draw and quarter Adolf Hitler.

I was wafted into the midst of this new Britain on the wings of a transatlantic clipper. The censor rightly would frown if I tried to describe this trip but it can be said the devious route brought us across in a remarkably few hours of actual flying time.

It was a wonderful journey, thanks to the Yankee master pilot and his six assistants, who handled the ship.

As we were set down in this streamlined fashion in the midst of a streamlined Britain, I couldn't help a backward glance at my first arrival here in January, 1916, during the last World War.

Like Fat, Old Dowager

Back in those primitive days we had wallowed across the Atlantic in a funny little tub of 6,000 tons. She had staggered, groaned and belched like a fat Dowager in her cups until finally after many days we were tossed ashore more dead than alive.

Then, as now, the Allied cause was fairly battered.

General Sir Douglas Haig, who later was to become Field Marshal Lord Haig, had just replaced General Sir John French as British Commander in Chief in France. The Gallipoli campaign just had ended in festering disaster. A few months later the Kaiser was to inaugurate the submarine campaign which all but cost the Allies the war.

Then, as now, the people of Britain were grimly determined to see it through.

But there was a vast difference in the circumstances. The war was far away—just as it is to us in America today.

True, there was some enemy bombing of Britain and casualties rolled back from the front. Still—fighting was overseas. Soldiers were sent away like crusaders of old to foreign lands—and civilians did not get the feel of it.

In this day of blitzkriegs and 8,000-pound bombs and huge clippers that span oceans, however, the war is to be carried into every town and home. The individual doesn't go to war but the war comes to him.

That's what has happened to Britain and brought about a great change.

Civilians are in the battleline.

British Will Be Ready

The sum of all this is that when the Allied high command feels the time has arrived to open that fiercely debated second front, the British people will be ready to jump to the guns.

So far as the troops are concerned, they long have been fretting to see action.

In the meantime, Britons carry on with their nourishing but weight-reducing rations and all the other rigors of war which make anything approaching a normal existence impossible. Social intercourses has suffered a vast blackout, and blackout here means blackout.

I felt my way across the street in the dark last night the distance of a few yards from the entrance to my hotel and had the utmost difficulty reaching my destination. A taxi narrowly missed me as it crept past—just an intensified bit of blackness that swept by like a silent bird of the night.

Foreigners are put under the microscope by military police who keep tabs on them constantly.

The authorities are efficient and hard, as needs must be in war time, for there are many spies about, but officialdom isn't without humor.

When I registered with the police yesterday and they found I had lived here previously they dug out my old identity book dating back to 1919. The officer who was handling my case opened the book to the photo of a handsome young feller with coal black hair and asked me :"That wouldn't be you, would it, sir?"

And he grinned as he said it, darn him.

Last Day of September Is Coldest for Month

September was ushered out today in the coldest temperature so far experienced this season, with thermometers in certain sections of the city recording as low as 28 degrees, while the city hall thermometer registered a low of 35 degrees at 6 o'clock this morning.

For the second night in succession a heavy white frost covered the ground and the roofs of the buildings in Kingston while fall temperatures prevailed throughout the morning.

Tuesday was an exceptionally cool day in the city with the city hall thermometer recording a low of 36 degrees at 6 o'clock that morning and a high of 57 degrees that afternoon. Toward night the mercury began dropping. This morning it had touched the lowest point so far recorded this month.

20 Boys, Teachers Killed in Raid

Rescue Workers Still Probe in School Wreckage

London, Sept. 20 (AP).—Twenty boys and two teachers including Miss Charlotte Marshall, 27-year-old head mistress, were known dead and rescue workers toiled on today in the belief others might be buried in the debris of a boys' school in southern England which was wrecked yesterday by a heavy German bomb.

Eighteen other boys were reported missing as the rescue work proceeded.

The blast injured 34 boys. The victims were among about 70 students doing arithmetic and composition work in the wood and brick building when the Nazi plane attacked.

Boys who escaped told police the bomb which destroyed the school fell into the fireplace and did not explode immediately.

Miss Marshall shouted to the boys to run. Those who did so escaped, but the teacher stayed behind.

Rationing Board Mails Out Renewals

The office force in the Kingston War Price and Rationing Board is now busy preparing for the mail approximately 2,500 renewals which are to be mailed to all those holding "B" and "C" gas ration books. The present books expire October 22.

It was stated today that it was expected that these renewals would be in the mail within the next few days, which would afford plenty of time for those receiving them to fill them out and return them to the rationing board.

When the renewals are filled out and returned the board will go over each renewal, and the one mailing it will receive a notice through the mail when to call at the board office for his new book. Adoption of this new system it is believed will assist materially in having the new ration books ready for use on October 23.

Nelson Asks Efforts

Washington, Sept. 30 (AP)—Men and women in the nation's war industries went to work today exhorted by Production Chief Donald M. Nelson to give "unheard of efforts" to increase a rate of output which already surpasses that of Axis Europe. While reporting yesterday that munitions production last month was eight per cent higher than in July, Nelson asserted the showing was "nothing to brag about" because "the plain fact of the matter is that production lagged in August about 14 per cent behind the first-of-the-month forecasts."

Both Parties Take 'Victory' Claims For Fall Elections

G.O.P. Says House Control Assured; Democrat Retention Forecast With Gains

Washington, Sept. 30 (AP) — A Republican prediction that the party would win control of the House in the November elections was countered today by a Democratic spokesman who expressed the belief that Democrats not only would retain their majority but might increase it slightly.

The Republican speaker was Frank E. Gannett, assistant chairman of the Republican national committee, who told a party dinner last night that the country was in an "awful mess" from what he described as the bungling of the war effort and new presidential threats to undermine the Constitution, and added:

"If the voters in November will elect a Republican House, as I believe they will, then we can check the New Deal follies, get rid of the inefficiency in our government, prosecute the war more vigorously and hasten that happy day when our boys will come back home."

Rep. Jed Johnson of Oklahoma, head of the Speakers' Bureau of the Democratic Congressional Campaign Committee, meanwhile told reporters at the capitol:

"We're hopeful of getting back at least as many members as we now have. Perhaps we can pick up a seat or two.

"I don't think there's the remotest possibility of a turnover which would give the Republicans a majority in the House."

(Present membership of the House is: Democrats 256; Republicans 165, with minority parties and vacancies making up the remainder of the 435. A clear majority is 218. On the present basis, the Republicans would have to capture more than 50 Democrats' seats and not lose any of their own to organize the next House.)

Johnson said there were about 40 Democrats and as many Republican incumbents who won in 1940 by a margin of 500 votes or less.

"Those seats are all in the doubtful territory," he said. "We may lose some, but we hope to gain at least as many as we lose. We probably will lose a few along the eastern seaboard, but make them up in the west."

The Oklahoman said he believed it likely his party would gain as many as five additional members from California, whose present delegations is now made up of nine Democrats and nine Republicans with two vacant seats formerly held by Democrats.

Gannett, addressing 20 members of the G. O. P. National Executive Committee and Republican members of the Senate and House, declared the public was losing confidence in the management of the war, he said it was the fault of the "higher-ups on the home front," not the men in uniform. He demanded that the "failures be thrown out" and men of ability and experience put in their places.

Urging his party to demand a "centralized or unified" command for the armed forces, Gannett said the Army and Navy were still jealous of each other and the top men in each branch were not giving adequate recognition to air power.

He said the President's threat to act to control prices and wages if Congress failed to do so was a "piece of official impertinence" which displayed a willingness to "usurp the law-making function."

Gannett, publisher of a Rochester, N. Y., newspaper, said freedom of the press also was being threatened and that important news was being "held back needlessly."

"I maintain that to win this war, we must keep the people informed and thus strengthen their morale," he declared, adding that for a long time there had been "a deliberate plan by the administration to smear, weaken and destroy our newspapers because they have dared to criticise New Dealism."

"The radio," he continued, "is under control because it is licensed. Freedom of speech over the air is being increasingly restricted. The next step is to control the press.

"The pending suit against the Asociated Press has this objective. If the A.P. can be made a public utility then there will be removed the last barrier in the way of putting all wire service under some government commission. Then government control tightens and freedom of the press perishes.

"Already, I am sorry to say, it is fast disappearing under the pretext that war demands control."
